Information Sought on Peril Posed for Men and Machines

BY HOWARD BENEDICT

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The Explorer 26 satellite soared into orbit today to measure space radiation and the threat it poses to men and machinery flying deep into space.

The 101-pound windmill-shaped satellite shot aloft from Cape Kennedy at 4 a.m. aboard a towering Delta rocket which blazed brilliantly into the pre-dawn darkness.

The flight control center announced an hour later that tracking information indicated all three stages of the booster had fired with precision and drilled the payload into space.

Launch director Robert Gray said that "everything seems to be working just as expected."

Explorer 26 was aimed at a looping course intended to take it 15,800 miles away from earth before it swings back as close as 200 miles at the low point of its orbit.

7-Hour Circuit

Because of the eccentric path sought, the satellite was to make one global circuit every seven hours.

Officials said it would require several hours to determine accurate orbital figures.

The newest in a long line of Explorer satellites is to carry on work started by its predecessors in probing basic scientific mysteries of space.

The Explorer experiments known

were designed to provide the most extensive information yet on how high energy radiation particles become trapped in the earth's magnetic field to form the Van Allen belt and the danger the belt poses to men and machinery flying future flights deep into space.

The satellite, whose four checkerboard-size solar cell panels give it the appearance of a windmill spinning through space, was aimed at the egg-shaped orbit so that it would cover the most intense radiation area of the Van Allen band and also the heaviest concentration of particles still left from a U.S. high altitude nuclear explosion. The nuclear blast, called Project Starfish, was conducted over the Pacific Ocean July 9, 1962.

Belt Disintegrating

The Van Allen region extends from about 600 miles to more than 40,000 miles above the earth. The heart of the Starfish belt is about 2,000 miles high.

The man-made belt is decaying rapidly and study of how it does so may provide scientists with clues to the behavior of the Van Allen particles. Data will be compared with that obtained by the Explorer 15 satellite which was launched two years ago specifically to probe the Starfish area.

The process by which electrons and protons are trapped in the earth's magnetic field is not known.

3 Youths Die As Passenger Train Hits Car

Wisconsin Traffic Fatalities for Year Increased to 1,033

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A car-train crash in suburban Wauwatosa Sunday took the lives of three young people as Wisconsin's record-breaking 1964 traffic toll pushed to 1,033, compared with 869 on this date a year ago.

Seven deaths recorded during the weekend included a freak accident in Milwaukee in which a man was crushed to death beneath his own car.

Killed in the collision of a car and a Milwaukee Road passenger train at a crossing in Wauwatosa Sunday were Joyce L. Culbertson, 16, Wauwatosa; James Junck, 17, New Berlin; and Richard Raasch, 17, New Berlin.

Auto Ripped Apart

The engineer of the eastbound train, Joseph Limberg, 60, La Crosse, told police the train was traveling at 68 miles an hour when it struck the 1955 model car occupied by the young people.

President Busy With Budget on His Texas Ranch

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson gave budget-cutting top priority today as he settled down at the LBJ Ranch for the Christmas holidays. He planned to discuss spending with his budget director and three Cabinet officers.

Press secretary George E. Reedy described Johnson as determined to reduce spending requests "as prudently as he can, and as far as he can within the limits of efficiency and effectiveness."

Those on hand at the ranch included Budget Director Kenneth C. Gordon, Secretary of Commerce Luther H. Hodges, Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz, Secretary of the Interior Stewart L. Udall and Dr. Donald Hornig, presidential assistant for science and technology.

Bonanno Fails to Appear at Office of Manhattan Attorney

NEW YORK (AP) — Missing Cosa Nostra kingpin Joseph (Joe Bonanno) Bonanno failed to show up at his attorney's Manhattan office today. Amid confusion, the attorney left to appear before a federal grand jury which was awaiting Bonanno.

Bonanno had disappeared two months ago in a purported kidnapping which took place while he was in the company of Maloney. Last Friday, Maloney confirmed published reports that Bonanno was alive and well, and would appear at the attorney's office at 9 a.m. today.

Maloney said Bonanno, 59, would then go before the rackels-probing grand jury, which had summoned him to testify on the day he disappeared.

Man Quizzed In Strangling Of His Wife

HUDSON, Wis. (AP) — A 35-year-old woman, mother of six, was found strangled in her home Sunday. Her estranged husband, located in a nearby city, was held for questioning after he had been arrested most of his nine months, plus more than 20 other leading politicians.

The victim, Mrs. Delores Morrison, lived with her children ranging in age from 15 to 5 years, in a rural area north of Hudson, in St. Croix County, about 10 miles east of the Wisconsin-Minnesota state line. Dist. Atty. Richard Rivard said she and her husband, James, 34, separated Oct. 31.

(Mrs. Hudson is a niece of Mrs. Elden Skiffstad, Neenah; Mr. and Mrs. Herman Gustafson, Appleton; Marvin Pruno, Menasha; Howard Pruno, Appleton; and Raymond Pruno, Neenah. She also has several cousins in the Fox Cities area.)

The prosecutor said Morrison related that on Saturday she visited his wife for the first time since their separation. Morrison said he arrived at the family home at about 8:30 p.m. and left between 10:30 and 11 p.m.

Heard Screaming

One of the children told authorities he heard what he thought was his mother screaming during the night.

Sunday morning, a 14-year-old son found his mother, clad in pajamas, lying on top of her bed. She was dead.

A physician who performed an autopsy said the condition of Mrs. Morrison's lungs indicated she had been strangled. There were abrasions on her body.

Sheriff Ray Hansen said Morrison was taken into custody at a hotel at New Richmond where he was registered as Richard Anderson. Morrison had a cut on his left wrist.

NEW YORK (AP) — A woman out for a stroll Sunday fell through the ice of Brooklyn's Prospect Park lake but was rescued by a helicopter.

Frances Carbonaro, 33, approached the lake without realizing it. The lake as well as the shoreline was covered with snow. About 50 yards out, the ice gave way.

Twenty policemen, six firemen and several spectators ran to help Mrs. Carbonaro. Four policemen and two firemen were dunked in the icy water.

A police helicopter arrived. Mrs. Carbonaro was hauled to safety. She was treated for exposure, as were her would-be rescuers.

3 Stay Aboard Disabled Ship In Stormy Seas

Vessel Picks Up 34 Survivors and Bodies of 4 Others

NEW YORK (AP) — A cracked and imperiled American freighter wallowed helplessly in the stormy Atlantic today, with the captain and two crewmen still aboard.

A Coast Guard cutter arrived on the scene about dawn and reported that winds had risen to gale force of 39 m.p.h. and high seas prevented boarding the stricken vessel.

The 7,600-ton freighter, the Smith Voyager, was listing to starboard at about 35 degrees.

Except for the master, Capt. Frederick W. Mohle, 59, and the other two men, the crew abandoned her Sunday. Another ship picked up 34 men, and the bodies of four others who died in the operation.

One man, of the crew of 42, was unaccounted for.

Friends of Reynolds, Doyle Boom Them for West District Judgeship

BY JOHN WYNGAARD
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

MADISON — Although it is a fair presumption that the friends of Gov. John Reynolds would like to boom him for the appointment to the vacant western district U. S. judgeship in Madison after he leaves office on Jan. 4, the situation involves some delicacy.

The governor is a good friend of David Rabinovitz, and supported him for the original appointment to the court where he served as judge for a year, but was forced to retire when the last Congress adjourned without giving him the required confirmation vote in the senate. Rabinovitz clearly hopes that he can get another nomination from President Johnson, and while there remains that possibility, it would be difficult for Reynolds' friends to do anything on his behalf.

There is also the complicating factor that if Rabinovitz is out of the running, James Doyle, the popular Madison Democrat and long-time party spokesman, also has powerful party backing for the judgeship.

There remain about 250 Wisconsin veterans of the Spanish-American war, the state department of veterans' affairs has noted in support of a continuation of the small annual appropriation provided for many years to support the cost of holding the annual encampment of the old soldiers' organization.

The school consolidation movement continues throughout Wisconsin, but at a more leisurely pace. There are now 674 school districts, the lowest number ever. But the state department of public instruction continues to nudge the remaining districts operating one room and two room schools to consolidate, without much result. There remain 91 one roomers in the state and 35 two room schools operating grades one through 8.

Owen Monfils, the civil defense director for the state on chosen by Democratic Gov. Reynolds, says he interprets the law to provide that he has an "indefinite" term, but Gov. Elect Warren P. Knowles disagrees. Monfils has been told that his resignation will be expected after Knowles is sworn in on January 4.

It is clear from the activities in the legal sense because his of his friends and campaign organizations that Rep. Henry C. Schadeberg of the first district, defeated in the November elections by Lynn Staibbaum of Racine, intends to make another campaign for his seat in 1966. His problem is finding employment during the interval. Some of his friends have suggested an appointment for him in the state government by the incoming Republican administration.

Wisconsin returns to three vote status in national Republican committee representation with the election of the Republican governor this year. Talbot Peterson of Appleton, state party chairman, will join Robert L. Pierce of Menomonie and Mrs. Byron Ising of Oshkosh as national committee members as a result of the recapture of the governorship, under the rules of the national organization.

Proceeds of the $25 a plate dinner to be held here Jan. 4 in connection with the inauguration of Democratic officials will be credited against campaign financing deficits of the Democratic state organization.

A part of the debt results from the fact that Sen. William Proxmire was forced in the last stages of his reelection campaign to reshuffle his promotion program completely, at unexpectedly high and additional cost.

The Wisconsin State Employees Association is preparing to demand from the new legislature what it calls a "simple, popular and non-discriminatory formula for raising state employees' salaries."

Translated, that means it wants to junk the existing merit pay increase plan, under which department heads must select recipients because the law prohibits the awarding of increases to more than 80 per cent of employees in any single year. The Association will ask for across-the-board pay increases on a regular schedule, in addition to the long-standing cost-of-living automatic adjustment law to provide that he has an "indefinite" term, but Gov. Elect Warren P. Knowles disagrees. Monfils has been told that his resignation will be expected after Knowles is sworn in on January 4.

Bavaria Halts Gypsy Invasion

MUNICH, Germany (AP) — The State of Bavaria announced Saturday it had stopped a threatened invasion of its territory.

Bavarian authorities hold there are no political reasons for the Gypsies to be admitted as refugees.

Believes State Should Study Untapped Ores

Zeidler, Gov.-Elect Knowles Discuss Long Range Economic Problems of Wisconsin

MADISON — Are there untapped reserves of mineral wealth in northeastern Wisconsin that have thus far escaped discovery and exploitation? Director Frank Zeidler of the state department of resource development so believes. He believes also that the possibility is worth state investigation.

Zeidler made his suggestion in a far-ranging discussion of Wisconsin economic problems during his interrogation by Gov. Elect Warren P. Knowles about budget requests of the agency for the next two years. In discussing the problems of economic stability and growth in the upper Wisconsin districts, Zeidler called the distant northeastern corner of the state from Florence to Iron county and environs "an unknown region" in mineral mapping terms.

The Zeidler-Knowles conference took a geological turn when the Republican governor-elect inquired about the geological formation of the northeastern district is a part of the so-called "Canadian shield" which is characterized by a glacial drift overlay which has made geological exploration and mapping difficult and costly. Zeidler said that ultimately ground formations there is less conite mining and processing, than in most of the other more developed and more populated districts of the state and the neighboring Minnesota iron range for more detailed topographic mapping, and for underground exploration as well.

Warriors Eye Next Encounter At Iowa State

McGuire Pleased
With Marquette's
Play in Classic

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Buoyed by an upset 62-61 victory over Wisconsin, the Marquette Warriors prepared today for their next assignment — a game at Ames, Iowa, Tuesday night against Iowa State.

Marquette's decision over the Badgers gave Coach Al McGuire's young team consolation honors in the Milwaukee Classic holiday basketball tournament at the Arena. UCLA won the championship by defeating Boston College 115-93.

McGuire called the triumph over Wisconsin a "mental breakthrough."

"We finally won a game that we weren't supposed to win," he said. "I'd say these two games in the Classic were our best so far (Marquette now is 3-4), particularly the UCLA game. Against UCLA our boys proved they are capable of playing good ball against top-notch competition."

The new Marquette coach said his team "caught Wisconsin psychologically down. The Badgers had a late game the night before and they were cold to boot against us."

Big Factor
McGuire rated rebounding as the big factor in the hard-fought decision over the Badgers. He praised Billy Joe Smith, Paul Carbins and Tom Flynn for excellence in this department. Smith got seven rebounds, Carbins 19 and Flynn 14 as Marquette outrebounded UW 51-37.

Flynn led in scoring with 18. UCLA, led by the sharpshooting southpaw, Gail Goodrich, who made 35 points demonstrated convincingly in the Classic finals why it is ranked fifth in the nation.

The Bruins scored 18 straight points in one minute and 40 seconds late in the first half to take a 39-42 lead and spent most of the second half toying with the Eagles who were handicapped by an injury to a junior sensation John Austin. A devastating UCLA press got several of Boston's defensive stalwarts into foul trouble and that spelled defeat for Coach Bob Cousy's outfit.

Austin who scored 36 points against Wisconsin Friday night, was picked on the all-tournament squad, along with Goodrich and Fred Goss of UCLA, team Six goals in the final period used the game for the Russians.

Saban Calls Victory 'Greatest Ever' After Buffalo Annexes Eastern Title

BY MIKE RATHET

BOSTON (AP)—About an hour had elapsed since Buffalo had clinched the Eastern Division title in the American Football League and Lou Saban, the Bills' coach, was just about to leave his paper-littered cubicle in Fenway Park.

Suddenly, a hand shot out in congratulations from an official of the losing Boston team. In a booming voice the Patriots' official said:

"You were a great coach out there today."

"Baloney," came the quick retort from Saban. "I was a great coach before I got here," he said. "Saban then grabbed his gear and left, his day of revenge complete."

He admittedly had waited a long time to whip Boston — the team that fired him midway through the 1961 season and had since beaten his Buffalo club in four of six meetings, including the playoff last year for the Eastern title.

But Saban sprang Jackie Kemp at the Patriots Sunday and the veteran quarterback proved a master of the snow-covered Fenway field. He passed for one touchdown and plunged for two others as the Bills ripped to a 24-14 victory and into the AFL championship game against San Diego at Buffalo this Saturday.

Saban and the Bills stormed into the dressing room after the game with such force that a group of onlookers actually stood completely still at an entrance door seemingly some what frightened as the Bills compounded backs and raised air-splitting voices.

When the steam was out, the Bills knelt around a table in the center of the room and Saban screamed:

Everlasting Thanks

"My everlasting thanks to you — for beating Boston."

Then All-Star guard Billy Shaw jumped on the table, held up the game ball and asked who should get it.

"Lou, Lou, Lou," came the reply.

Handed a bottle of champagne, Saban took a swig and went to his private cubicle to explain his feelings.

"This is the greatest victory I've ever had," he said, "especially after all the nonsense and left from this city. There will never be another victory like this for me. We've had to sit back and take a lot of stuff. But that's all team that fired him midway through the 1961 season and had since beaten his Buffalo club in four of six meetings, including the playoff last year for the Eastern title."

The story also was Kemp, four of six meetings, including the playoff last year for the Eastern title.

Why Saban started and into the AFL championship game against San Diego at Buffalo this Saturday.

"I felt we would need the passer, and that's Kemp," said Saban. "Besides, he needed a game with such force that a group of onlookers actually stood completely still at an entrance door seemingly some what frightened as the Bills compounded backs and raised air-splitting voices."

Need Passer

"I felt we would need the passer, and that's Kemp," said Saban. "Besides, he needed a game with such force that a group of onlookers actually stood completely still at an entrance door seemingly some what frightened as the Bills compounded backs and raised air-splitting voices."

GREEN BAY (AP)—The Green Bay Bobcats moved into second place in the United States Hockey League with a 4-2 record Sunday by defeating the St. Paul Steers 7-6 in an overtime game. George Hill, who made three goals to lead the Bobcats, scored the winning goal in the third period. The game was tied 2-2 at the end of regulation. Hill scored the go-ahead goal in the first overtime minute. The Steers' goalie, Don Smith, made 35 saves.

San Diego, Western Champion, Upset by Oakland, 21-20

BY BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

The hard facts from the statistics sheets and a quick review of recent history would point to a Buffalo victory over San Diego next Saturday in the American Football League's title game.

But it's those pesky, unpredictable intangibles that have a way of turning things around and make it impossible to answer these questions until Saturday afternoon in Buffalo.

Will Buffalo's momentum, plus the lift of the Eastern Division clinching 24-14 decision over Boston Sunday be enough to carry the Bills to their first title in the five-year history of the league?

Or will defending champion San Diego be able to shake off the disturbing effect of two straight losses, including a 21-20 upset at the hands of Oakland, and nail down a second straight title?

San Diego Coach Sid Gilman tends to discount the intangible and stick to hard facts.

"We played Buffalo two times and they beat us two times," he said after Sunday's unpleasant surprise by Oakland. "In the first game we didn't have any of our big guns and took a good beating. The second time we had them all, but we lost because we gave the game away."

Contain Gilchrist
"We'll try to contain Cookie Gilchrist the best we know how. If we don't, they'll beat us."

The Russians scored three direct replies. Instead, there were goals in each period, topped by several short sentences, shot out Valerie Kozin with two Top scorers for the Black Hawks.

Bobby Hull, scoring goals at a fantastic clip, is wearing a big grin these days but not because of his own scoring pace.

Hull, with 28 goals in 28 games, looms as a strong threat to break the National Hockey League record of 50 in one season that he shares with Bernie Goeffron and Maurice Richard.

"I hope it never ends," says Hull of his pace. And you might say he feels the same way about a small string of goals put together by one of his Chicago Black Hawk teammates.

Young Dennis Hull, who spent the first third of the National Hockey League season hidden in his brother's shadow, now seems to have won his letter. The 20-year-old rookie scored twice over the weekend while brother Bobby clicked three times as the Hawks stretched their winning streak to seven games.

Each Hull hit once in Sunday night's 3-2 victory over Boston but it was another youngster, Phil Esposito, who scored the winning goal. Esposito, a center whose promotion to the Hull line coincides with the Black Hawks' streak, scored the winning goal in the last four minutes and now has 13 for the season.

In other NHL action Sunday, Montreal edged New York 3-2 and Detroit topped Toronto 3-1.

FVL Duels St. John Here Tuesday Night

Chuters Have 3-2 Lead in Cage Series

BY TIM PETERMANN
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Fox Valley Lutheran High School seeks its fourth straight win and fifth in six starts and St. John of Little Chute will try to even its season record at 4-4 as the Foxes and Dutchmen square off in their annual rivalry at the FVL gym Tuesday night.

FVL hasn't played a game in 11 days, which may or may not weigh against them, but the Foxes will attempt to even the series with the Dutchmen at 3-3. Last year, the Dutchmen were beaten as the Foxes staged a 74-56 comeback. However, St. John's has all but one of the point producers of that game back. With seven St. John lettermen back, Fox Lutheran will probably have its back to the wall. The Foxes hope to shoot as sharply as they did against Northwestern and Manitowish.

FVL Coach Gerry Kaness expects plenty of trouble from the Chuters because they have been in every game to the end. The largest margin of St. John defeat has been only 10 points.

Coach Bill Fitzpatrick will probably have five of his seven lettermen starting. These include Bruce Hammen (5-11-2), Fox Valley Catholic Conference scoring champion last year, Dave Van Vreede (6-0); Mike Weyenberg (6-0); Al Liebergen (5-9-2); Tom Hurling (5-11-2); Jay Van Thiel (6-1-2) and Gary Romensko (5-10). All are seniors except Romensko.

Kaness will have junior Mark Dahlke (6-0) and senior Brian Erickson (6-2) at the forwards and seniors Lee Kieple (5-11) and Ron Vandertie (5-10-2) or junior Alan Olson (6-0) at the guards. The center will be either senior Ron Sager (6-5-2) or junior Tom Ehike (6-1).

Paced by Dahlke

FVL is being paced by Dahlke with 81 points for an average of 16.2 a game, and Lee Kieple with 72—a 14.4 average. Next are Erickson, with 60, Vandertie, 43, and Ehike, 30.

Erickson leads in rebounds with 59. Ron Sager has 46 and Dahlke 36. The Foxes have been outscoring their opponents by an average score of 68 to 53.4 while shooting at a 43 per cent clip.

Hammen leads St. John in scoring with 129 points for an 18.4 average. Van Vreede has 90, Van Thiel 60, Weyenberg 45 and Hurling 42.

The Dutchmen have outscored their opponents, 61-58.1.

Report Contracts of 3 Detroit Lions Aides Will Not be Renewed

Schmidt Rumored
As One Replacement
On Coaching Staff

DETROIT (AP)—The reported firings of three Detroit Lion coaching aides — over strong objections from Head Coach George Wilson — stirred the Detroit pro football scene today.

Officially, there was no confirmation. The Lions' top brass, including owner William Clay Ford, declined comment.

However, authoritative sources said the axe had fallen.

on Les Bingaman, Bob Nussbaumer and Don Doll, all old line members of Wilson's staff or playing roster. Their contracts are not to be renewed, it was said.

Linedbacker Joe Schmidt was rumored as one replacement. An "announcement," its nature undisclosed, was reported to be forthcoming some time today from the Lions' front office.

The firings report came out Sunday, along with the report that Wilson had objected and had been overruled by Ford.

One source said owner Ford, who bought the Lions for $5 million two years ago and became sole boss, ordered Wilson to fire the three aides.

Ford declined comment. Wilson could not be reached at the time.

General Manager Edwin J. Anderson declined direct comment on the reported three firings. He said he had not seen published reports.

"Everything was in a speculative stage," he said.

Authoritative sources said player complaints about coaching had been made to owner Ford personally and dissension existed in the squad.

MADISON (AP)—Wisconsin basketball coach Johnny Erickson picked a traveling squad of 10 today for a holiday jaunt to Honolulu and the Rainbow Classic tournament.

The Hawaiian meet will afford the embattled Badgers' losers of two heartbreaking one-point decisions in the Milwaukee Classic—another chance at one of their tormentors, the Boston College Eagles.

Wisconsin meets BC in the Honolulu tournament opener Saturday.

The Eagles' talented marksman, John Austin, pitched in a 25-foot basket as the buzzer sounded to beat Wisconsin Friday night, and Marquette's upstart sophomores outfought the Badgers under the boards Saturday night to capture a surprise 62-61 victory.

Erickson wonders what one has to do to win the close ones.

"Two points and 11 seconds of play were enough to keep us from having a 5-1 record," said Erickson. "Now we're 3-3, but maybe we learned a lot of things. We still have a good

Arbanas May Retain Sight In Injured Eye

KANSAS CITY (AP)—A doctor expressed some optimism Sunday that Fred Arbanas of the Kansas City Chiefs will retain sight in an eye that was injured in a street incident Dec. 10.

Arbanas, all-league tight end last two seasons, underwent surgery Dec. 13 but still is hospitalized. He missed the Chiefs' last two games.

Coach Hank Stram said Arbanas and a teammate were walking along a street when a stranger made some remark about "big football players" and slammed a fist into Arbanas' eye.

The eyeball was damaged by a knuckle, or possibly a ring worn by the attacker. The assailant got away, and his identity was not established, officials said.

Bills' Wilson Claims Suggestion Made by NFL Owner to Merge

Plan Calls for Dropping Two of Eight AFL Teams

DETROIT (AP) — Ralph C. Wilson Jr., owner of the American Football League's Buffalo Bills, says a National Football League club owner approached the AFL last year seeking a merger of the two leagues and a common player draft.

Wilson, a Detroit insurance and trucking executive, and former stockholder in the NFL's Detroit Lions, also said Sunday the AFL has 30 applications for new franchises and hopes to field a team in Detroit.

"About a year ago one of the top owners in the NFL approached our league with a proposition of merger and a common draft," Wilson said.

"We called a special meeting to consider it. Our attorneys warned that the Justice Department might jump down our throats on the anti-trust laws. So we turned it down."

Drop Two Teams

"What the NFL wanted was for us to drop two of our teams. They would take in six, making it a 20-team NFL."

"One of the teams they wanted us to drop was the New York Jets. It's not likely that the Maras in New York would still for a merger with a second team in their city."

The Mara family owns the New York Giants of the NFL.

Wilson said he is convinced that major cities can support two pro football teams.

"Detroit definitely will have an AFL team," he predicted. "And the move would be more

Barnes Resigns UCLA Job

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Bill Barnes, former UCLA head football coach, is shopping for a new job today.

Says School Wasn't Going To Renew Pact

He resigned, he said, "because they were not going to renew my contract."

Barnes said he learned this from Athletic Director J. D. Morgan. "I asked Morgan why I was through, but all he would say was, 'There are a lot of reasons.'"

Morgan would not give additional comment Sunday, but was expected to make the announcement official today.

Said Barnes: "I knew some people who were unhappy with our won-and-lost record, and that's the big thing, of course."

UCLA won four games and lost six the past season. It also allowed 236 points — more than any other major team in the nation.

Barnes, whose fate has been the subject of grim speculation for several weeks, blamed part of his trouble on pressure from alumni and other influential UCLA backers which led the Bruins to switch from the single wing to the T formation in 1962.

The single wing — installed by the late Red Sanders in 1949 — led UCLA to victorious seasons in 1959-60-61 under Barnes, who had become head coach in the middle of the 1958 season after eight years as an assistant.

The Bruins also took one Athletic Association of Western Universities championship, shared a second and went to the Rose Bowl in 1961.

But after switching to the T, UCLA was 4-6 in 1962 and 2-8 in 1963.

Illinois Nips Kentucky For Tournament Title

Vanderbilt Edges Oklahoma State Quintet, 60-58

BY DICK COUCH
Adolph Rupp and his Kentucky Wildcats — true believers in southern hospitality — are gracious hosts each December at the UK Invitational Basketball Tournament. There is only one house rule for visitors to Lexington—don't walk off with the silverware!

That may explain the Baron's displeasure today with his cousins from Illinois.
The once-beaten Illini romped off with the tourney title last Saturday night, topping Kentucky 91-86 in the final despite a closing rush by the eighth-ranked Wildcats. It was Illinois' first victory over Kentucky since 1943 and the first UKIT title for a Big Ten team in nine tries. The host club had won seven of 11 previous tournaments.

Skip Thoren scored 27 points and Tal Brody 25 for the Illini, 6-1. They blew a 16-point margin late in the game before Brody and Bill McKeown hit six straight free throws to pull away from an 83-82 edge.

The tournament drew 23,300 fans, a record for the two-night, four-team event. Dayton beat West Virginia 71-67 for third place.

Keep Crowds Happy

Three other tourney-stagers kept the home crowds happy. Ninth-ranked Vanderbilt edged Oklahoma State 60-58 in the Commodore's Tournament final at Nashville; Arizona State outran Murray, Ky., 107-96 to capture the Sun Devil Classic at Tempe, Ariz., and Evansville's giant-killers whipped Louisiana State 93-73 for the Evansville Holiday crown.

UCLA's defending major college champions belted Boston College 115-93 and Alabama surprised North Carolina 66-61 in the finals of the Milwaukee and Virginia Tech Invitionals, respectively.

Bob Andrews' driving layup put Alabama in front to stay 62-60 after the Crimson Tide had squandered a 14-point lead.

Elsewhere, No. 1 ranked Wichita and No. 10 St. Louis won Missouri Valley Conference games while Minnesota, Indiana, Utah, Providence and Connecticut remained unbeaten.

Dave Stallworth's 25 points led the Wheatshockers past Drake 71-60 and Randy Albrecht's two free throws with three seconds remaining wrapped up the Billikens' 76-73 decision over previously unbeaten Bradley.

Minnesota, 5-0, routed Utah State 88-69. Indiana buried Detroit 108-89. Utah beat California 99-74 and Providence nipped Iowa 71-70. The Hoosiers, Utes and Friars have won six straight. The Uconn's, whose 7-0 mark tops the list of 11 major unbeaten, got past Fordham 70-67.

Sixth-ranked Duke ran over Virginia 104-91 and St. John's, N.Y., No. 7, outscored Notre Dame 76-72.

Rhyme Heads Helms' Unit's All-America

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Tulsa quarterback Jerry Rhyme has edged out Notre Dame's John Huarte, California's Craig Morton and Michigan's Bob Timberlake to top the roster of the Helms Athletic Foundation All-America football team.

Rhyme picked up five ballots Saturday while the other star collegiate quarterbacks won four each.

The team is selected from players named in national polls. The selections, with votes:

On occasion, Chace can be prodded into a score a little better than usual. Recently, for instance, he outdid himself by hitting 143 and defeating one of his three sons.

Chace, a widower, was given a birthday party Saturday when he turned 95 by members of the family.
Usually, though, he lives alone and likes it.
"I like to be my own boss and come and go as I please," he said.

When the family tried once to take over his grocery shopping for him, he vetoed the idea. Aside from the enjoyment he gets out of visiting the store himself, he said, he wants the trading stamps.

he was getting in Chicago, attempted to farm Dennis out a week ago but withdrew his name from the waiver list when Toronto put in a claim.

Dennis started playing again and potted his first NHL goal Saturday night in Montreal as the Hawks won 6-3. In Saturday's other game, Toronto clouted New York 6-3.

The Canadiens checked well and beat the Rangers with Ralph Backstrom's third period goal proving the difference. It was New York's sixth straight game without a victory and Coach Red Sullivan hinted a shakeup might be in the works.

It was oldtimer's night in Detroit where Ted Lindsay scored two goals and Gordie Howe got one for the Red Wings. Their victim was longtime teammate Terry Sawchuk, now minding the nets for Toronto.

Massucco Elevated to Head Coach

WORCESTER, Mass., (AP) — Mel Massucco, for 10 years an aide to Dr. Eddie Anderson, has been named Holy Cross head football coach succeeding the retiring dean of his profession.

Massucco, 39, former Crusader star, has been serving as freshman coach and chief scout at his alma mater. He signed a three-year contract for an undisclosed salary.

The announcement was made Saturday by the Very Rev. Raymond J. Swords, S.J., president of Holy Cross.

Dr. Anderson retired after 39 years as a head coach, 21 of them at Holy Cross. The college advisory committee screened applicants for three months before choosing Massucco.

"I hope I'm as happy at this time next year as I am now," Massucco said. "I'm most grateful for the opportunity to coach at Holy Cross. It won't be an easy assignment filling the shoes of a coach as great as Dr. Eddie Anderson, but I welcome the challenge and hope he will be available if I need any counseling."

"We'll concentrate on the running game, but without minimizing the passing game. I feel that a football team that can hit and move the ball on the ground will be much better defensively."

Massucco played right half-back at Holy Cross. His school career mark of 1,598 yards rushing still stands.

Bills Defeat Patriots, Win Division Title

RUSHING — Definite edge to Buffalo. The Bills' 250-pound fullback Cookie Gilchrist is the league's leading ground gainer for the second time with 981 yards on 230 carries. Team has league-leading 2,039. Halfback Keith Lincoln is San Diego's best with 632 yards on 155, but was limited by injury to place-kicking duties in Sunday's loss to Oakland.

PASSING — Slight edge to San Diego. San Diego's John Hadl has completed 147 of 274 for 2,161 yards and 18 touchdowns. Buffalo, which abandoned system of switching from Darlye Lamonica to Jackie Kemp and stuck with Kemp all the way against Boston. He's their best passer with 119 of 267 for 2,285 and 13 touchdowns. Hadl has had only 15 interceptions. Kemp 26.

PASS RECEIVING — Slight edge to San Diego. Lance Alworth of the Chargers is one of the league's most feared. He's taken 61 for 1,235 and 13 touchdowns. Buffalo's biggest threat is speedy Elbert Duenen with 42 for 1,159 yards and 10 touchdowns.

Bills Lead League
DEFENSE — Definite edge to Buffalo. Bills lead league in total defense, rushing defense. Have given up total of 2,873 yards for 276.7 average. San Diego has allowed 4,064 for an average of 290.3, including 1,507 yards rushing — Buffalo's strong point on offense.

In addition to the key games involving Buffalo and San Diego, the other regular season football games saw Kansas City clip New York 24-7 and Houston beat Denver 34-15.

Kemp was the prime mover for the Bills against the Patriots as a swirling snow storm and Boston's line contained the rush of Gilchrist and Wray Carlton. Kemp opened with a 57-yard scoring pass to Duenen and sneaked across for the other two himself, after setting them up with passes.

Boston's lone chance to get back into the frosty game came in the first period when a Babe Parilli pass to Tony Romeo went 37 yards for a touchdown, but a two-point try for conversion failed. That made it 7-6 Buffalo, and the Bills had a 17-6 halftime margin on a Kemp sneak and Pete Gogolak's 12-yard field goal.

Big One
"This was the big one for us," Buffalo defensive back George Sames said. "We're over the hump now and we'll take San Diego. We had this mental block about not beating Boston. If we could get this thing out of our system, then we would be okay, and we did it. It's downhill from here. We'll take San Diego, no doubt about it."

"We've beat them twice, I think we can do it again," Gilchrist said. "I haven't had too much trouble running against them."

The victory avenged a 26-8 loss to Boston in a playoff for the division title last year after the two teams had finished in a tie, and a regular season loss to the Patriots earlier this year.

Oakland's Clem Daniels sparked the Raider comeback, running for 120 yards in the final quarter against San Diego. He accounted for 57 in the winning drive, capped in the closing minutes on a 12-yard touchdown pass from Tom Flores to Billy Cannon and Mike Mercer's winning conversion kick.

Season Records
George Blanda set season records for pass attempts, 505, and completions, 262, in the Oilers' victory. Chuck Henningan caught eight for a season total of 101, a record. It was the last game for Oiler Coach Sammy Baugh, who announced last week he was stepping down as head coach.

Len Dawson passed for two touchdowns for the Chiefs, who evened their season record at 7-7. The Jets' Matt Snell ran for 103 yards, setting a rookie rushing mark of 945 for the season, but the Jets still lost their seventh straight on the road.

Pick 3 for Ski Tourney

Balfanz, Martin Hicks to Represent U. S. in Europe

WASHBURN (AP)—Three ski jumpers from Minnesota were chosen Sunday to represent the United States in the German-Austrian Springer Tourney late this month and early January.

They are John Balfanz and Jay Martin, both of Minneapolis, and Dave Hicks, Duluth. Martin is a student at the University of Wyoming and Hicks attends the University of Minnesota at Duluth. Balfanz manages a ski area in northern Illinois.

U.S. Olympic Coaches Art Tinkle and Al Merrill made the selections following an eight-day training camp climaxed by jumping competition at Mt. Vahala near here Saturday and Sunday. Jumping results and scores were not announced.

The three will leave Wednesday for Europe with Tinkle and will compete in Oberstdorf, Germany, on Dec. 27; at Garmisch-Partenkirchen, Germany, Jan. 1, at Innsbruck, Austria, Jan. 3, and at Bischofshofen, Austria, Jan. 6.

Others who competed were Ganz, Ishpeming, Mich.

team and if we can correct some things and learn from our errors we can come back."

Against Marquette, the Badgers had the ball with eight seconds left but never got off the shot that might have won Lanky Paul Carbins of the Warriors intercepted a pass under the Wisconsin basket to blast the Badgers' last hopes.

Good and Sound

Erickson said he believed Wisconsin's defensive is "good and sound." The trick is to get the offensive to function as consistently as the defense. If that happens, said Erickson, "we can play winning basketball."

The Badger coach said he was puzzled by the form reversal of Ken Gustafson who scored 19 points against Boston College but none against Marquette when he took only three shots.

Wisconsin will have a number of workouts in San Francisco and in Hawaii before the tournament. In these drills, Erickson said, 6-foot-8 Keith Stelter a 6-foot-9 Tom Schoeneck are expected to see considerable action in an effort to improve rebound play.

The Badger squad leaves Madison by plane Tuesday night and will have two drills at the University of San Francisco gymnasium before flying to Honolulu Thursday. The party will return to Los Angeles New Year's day and arrive in Madison late the same day.

On the traveling squad are Dave Roberts, Keith Barnes, Mark Zubor, Jim Bohlen, Ken Gustafson, Tom Schoeneck, Chuck Aslakson, Keith Stelter, Paul Morenz and Dennis Sweeney.

Gene Kotlarek, Duluth; Tom Peterson, Iron Mountain, Mich.; Lyle Swenson, Westby, Wis.; Bill Baake, Madison, and Ernie Ganz, Ishpeming, Mich.

Princeton's Bill Bradley Faces Tough Decision

Must Choose Between Rhodes Scholarship, NBA

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Bill Bradley of Princeton is faced with a problem that would fascinate most of the ambitious young collegians in the country — whether to turn professional or accept a Rhodes Scholarship.

The 6-foot-5 All-America basketball player and ace of this country's victorious Olympic basketball team, was one of four major collegiate athletes among the 32 college seniors named to Rhodes Scholarships Sunday.

The scholarships make them eligible for two years of graduate study at Oxford.

"I'm not trying to be dramatic," he said at his home in Crystal City, Mo., where he is spending Christmas vacation. "I just can't say right now what my chances are of trying to play professional basketball. I'll announce my decision shortly, just as soon as I have a chance to talk to some people."

In the history of the awards, none has ever been turned down. The candidates for the scholarships are carefully screened, tested and interviewed.

Hardly Any Reaction

"We'd been through so much," said Harvard basketball player Merle McClugg, another

Monday, December 21, 1964 Appleton Post-Crescent B4

Scholarship winner, "I hardly had any reaction at all. It had been such a long grind — the tests and interviews — I was pretty well dulled by the time I was told I'd won."

Other athletes who won the coveted Rhodes were Mike Smith, regular center on Princeton's Ivy League football champions, and Bart Holaday, place kicker on the Air Force Academy football team.

Bradley, however, is one of the most prominent athletes named to the scholarship, along with football All-Americans Byron (Whizzer) White of Colorado, now U.S. Supreme Court Justice, and Pete Dawkins of Army, a Heisman Trophy winner.

Bradley, an All-America selection as a junior last season, is one of the nation's leading collegiate basketball scorers and one of the top professional prospects.

A history major with a B average, he has found time from his studies to lead Princeton to two straight Ivy League basketball titles, averaging about 30 points a game.

Sympathy Extended to Johnsons For Loss of White House Beagle

BY MARTHA COLE
WASHINGTON (AP) — Animal lovers from 7 to 70 have written to President Johnson and his family by the hundreds to extend sympathy on the death of the White House beagle puppy named Her.
About 400 letters have come in since Her died almost two weeks ago. Included were about 800 offers of dogs or other animals — even a calf.
Her and Him, brother and sister, belonged to Luci, the 17-year-old daughter of the President. Johnson showed delight in walking them around the White

Boyle's Mail Bag American Teens Spend $11 Billion Annually

BY HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:
America's 22½ million teenagers spend an estimated $11 billion yearly.
Probably the most contagious of all human diseases is ergasophobia — the fear of work.
One in every 10 U.S. families — some five million in all — is now headed by a woman. In a third of these families there is a child of school age, and in an additional 23 per cent a child under 6.
If you don't receive at least 15 Christmas cards, you aren't as popular as the average guy.
Scientists at the University of Alabama are working on a chewing gum they hope will help prevent dental decay.
In eight out of 10 cases of automobile theft the culprit is a boy under 20.
Our quotable notables: "Dreaming permits each and every one of us to be quietly and safely insane every night of our lives." — Dr. William Dement.
It costs as much to produce a television commercial today as it used to take to put on a three-act dramatic play. One recent 90-second auto commercial required the cooperation of 200 people in five states over a four-month period. The final bill was $27,000.
History lesson: What president carried a bullet in his arm for 20 years? He was Andrew Jackson, who was wounded in a duel in 1812. The imbedded bullet wasn't removed until 1832.
Perhaps the most cantankerous of all White House residents, Jackson, according to some authorities, engaged in approximately 100 brawls and duels in his lifetime.
Hitting the silk: sky divers plummet earthward at a speed of up to 160 miles an hour until their parachutes open. They then slow down to 16 feet a second, or less than 11 miles an hour.

Today in History

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Today is Monday, Dec. 21, the 356th day of 1964. There are 10 days left in the year.
Today's highlight in history:
On this date in 1620, the pilgrims arrived at what now is Plymouth, Mass. Their tiny ship "Mayflower" had reached Cape Cod in November.
On this date:
In 1776, Benjamin Franklin arrived in Paris on a mission to secure aid for the colonists.
In 1804, the English Statesman Benjamin Disraeli was born.
In 1898, radium was discovered by Pierre and Marie Curie.
In 1945, Gen. George Patton died of injuries received two weeks earlier in an auto accident at Heidelberg, Germany.
In 1951, an explosion in the New Orient Mine at West Frankfort, Ill., killed 119 men.
Ten years ago — Secretary of State John Foster Dulles declared atomic weapons would be used tactically against aggression in Europe.
Five years ago—Indian Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru rejected a Chinese Communist proposal for early talks to settle their border dispute.
One year ago — President Johnson ordered a committee formed to study the economic impact of possible arms reductions and changes in defense spending.
Cuba's Guevara Meets Algeria's Ben Bella
ALGIERS (AP) — Cuban Minister of Industry Ernesto Guevara met for half an hour Saturday with Algerian President Ahmed Ben Bella.
No details of the meeting were reported but Algiers Radio said Guevara, who arrived in Algeria late Friday, will issue a statement within the next day or two.

House lawn, and they received widespread publicity when he held them up by their ears.
Her swallowed a stone the day after Thanksgiving and died.
"We have a beagle, too, so we tied a black string around our beagle's collar and will keep it on for 30 days to show mourning," 8-year-old Dean Long in McHenry, Ill., wrote the White House.
In the careful hand of a child, on lined paper, Joanne Long of Markesan, Wis., wrote that her family had named two Angus calves after the Johnson beagles.
"I'll send you our calf named Her to you if you like. But you may not want her on the white-house (sic) lawn," Joanne wrote.
Eight Hamsters
Laurie Kay Meacham of Seattle, Wash., wrote that she had eight hamsters and would like to send Luci one. Margaret Delaney, 7, of Oak Park, Ill., wrote that she had renamed her beagle Her so "you can come to see her and I will come to see you."
The White House has declined all offers of pets, following a policy set soon after Johnson became president.
Tuesday after again explaining the policy, it returned a female beagle puppy sent by E. D. Hollstein of Rushville, Neb. It sent Hollstein a picture of the President and the two beagles, autographed "from one dog lover to another."
About half the sympathy letters have come to Luci, the rest to Johnson or to him and the family.

The children wrote with the sincerity of childhood.
"I will ask Santa Claus to bring another Her so that you will feel better," Tinky Storti, 8, of Miami, Fla. wrote.
Barbara E. Ressler of Holtwood, Pa., wrote that they had named their puppies after the White House dogs and "Mr. President, you may have my puppy. Her. Thank you. Mr. President for reading my letter. I know you are very busy helping our country."
Barbara added a P.S. — "When you have time give Him a pat on the head for me."
Luci, answering letters for her busy father, thanked Barbara for her concern and unselfish offer "of a puppy that must mean a lot." Him has been lonely, Luci wrote, and "we will be sure to give him an extra pat on the head for you."
Many of the children asked about Him and told how sorry they were about Her.
Wrote a little girl in Miami: "My sisters and I feel very sad — more sad than my daddy and mommy feel about Notre Dame losing the football game."

30 More Whites Feared Slain by Congo Rebels

Missionaries and Their Families Believed Victims

BY ROBIN MANNOCK

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP) — Thirty more white hostages, all missionaries and their families, are believed to have been killed by rebels in the northeastern Congo, refugees arriving here said Sunday.

The missing include an American, Mary Baker of Richmond, Va. She was last reported at Banalia, 82 miles north of Stanleyville, on Nov. 20.

Fifteen other missionaries were missing from Banalia and 14 more from Bafwasende, 150 miles northeast of Stanleyville.

Fourteen refugees freed at Bafwasende by white mercenary troops said they were not sure the other hostages in the town had been killed.

Signs of Massacre
"We heard one volley of rifle fire," said Dolena Burk of Calgary, Alta., "but later the simbas (rebel soldiers) promised us they had not been killed."

Mrs. Burk's husband is among the missing.

Other refugees said the mercenaries told them they found traces of a recent massacre at Banalia. Children's clothes, the habits of a nun and a priest and splashes of blood were discovered on the slope leading up to

Walkout by New York Harbor Workers Termed 'Wildcat' By Longshoremen's Union

GALVESTON, Tex. (AP) — District President Ralph A. Massey said, while negotiations strike from Maine to Texas are in progress.

Massey said the union could order dock workers to leave their jobs at any time and there remained a strong possibility of a strike which would paralyze shipping on the Gulf Coast and the Eastern Seaboard.

An 8 p.m. deadline for a West Gulf strike passed before Massey emerged from a bargaining session to make his announcement.

Pier Picketed
In New York, pickets appeared at a Grace Lines pier and a state waterfront commission spokesman blamed a contract dispute between ILA Local 791, oldest in the port, and ship owners. Workmen stayed on the job at a pier in Brooklyn, the only other one operating Sunday night.

Continue Work
Longshoremen will continue working on a day to day basis.

Besides Mrs. Burk, the survivors included 11 Italian Roman Catholic nuns and two British women missionaries. They were rescued Saturday.

Mrs. Burk said the simbas became furious after central government planes raided Bafwasende. All the white hostages, who had been crammed for three days in a single room, were taken out to be shot, she said.

Won't Deal With Rebels
"They separated us and the nuns from the others," she said. Eight Dutch Catholic priests, her husband, a British family and an Australian and a British woman were in the other group. Premier Moise Tshombe left Brussels for Congo. He said his government would not negotiate with the rebels.

Caught in Las Vegas

Suspects in Green Bay Holdup to be Returned

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Two wanted in Madison, Wis., on armed holdup and abduction charges, Dane County Deputy Dist. Atty. Donald McCallum obtained warrants for the pair Nov. 23, a day after they allegedly figured in a holdup of a Madison motel and the abduction of a young couple.

Authorities said the men obtained $100 by holding up a motel employee and in fleeing forced Karen Carley of Madison and her companion, Dennis Haugen of McFarland, to accompany them. Miss Carley and Haugen were in a car parked on a Madison street. Both were released unharmed in Sullivan. Police said a car abandoned by Holliday and Gruender when it stalled contained gun holsters, ammunition, handcuffs and burglary tools.

Mathews said Gruender and Holliday were traveling in a 1964 car stolen from Assistant Police Chief Gene Arnold of Germantown, Wis. The car disappeared from a Germantown garage to which it had been taken for repairs.

According to Mathews, Gruender was trying Friday night to convert rolls of pennies into currency at a motel. A motel employee noticed that the coin wrappers were marked "Green Bay." Becoming suspicious, he called the sheriff's office and deputies arrested Gruender.

Holliday was arrested Saturday night at a hotel. Neither he nor Gruender would say how they got possession of the car. They were booked as fugitives.

Li Mathews said Gruender had more than $1,700 in currency and rolled coins and a .38 caliber revolver bearing the serial number of a gun stolen in the Montgomery Ward robbery. Three armed men participated in the Green Bay holdup. They herded about 30 employees of the store into a back room, taped the hands of some and forced the manager and his assistant to open the safe. Clothing, watches, rifles, pistols and cash were taken.

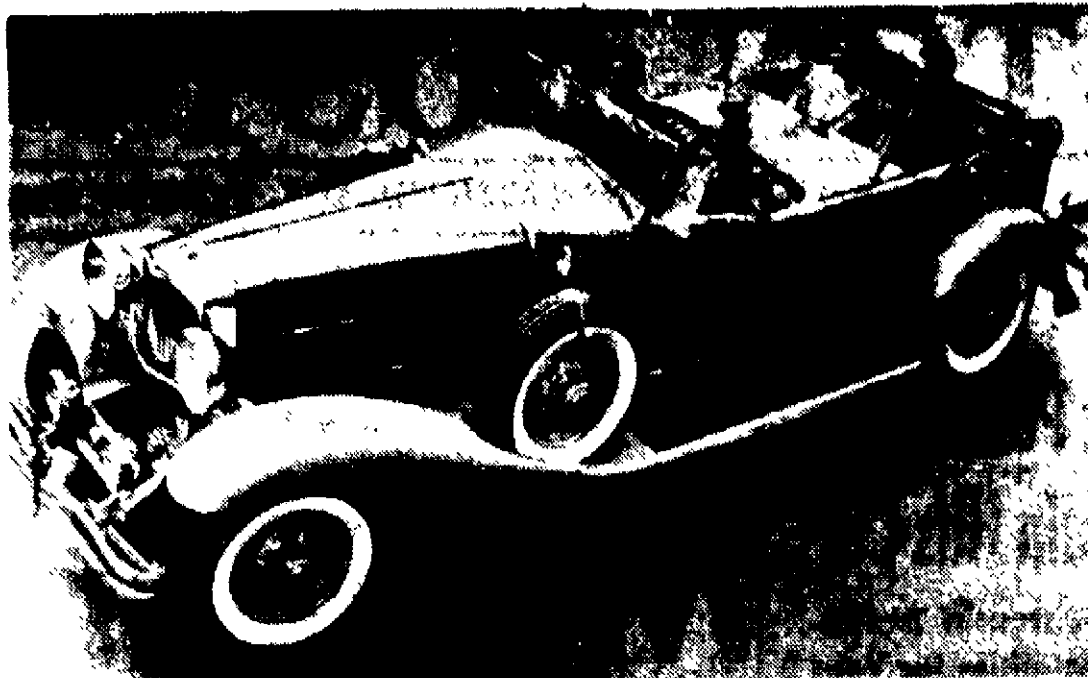

Two Green Bay officers are driving to Las Vegas to help Li Mathews return Gruender and Holliday to Wisconsin.

Spirit of Christmas

Department Store Santa Claus Has Job Fraught With Hazards

BY STEPHENS BROENING

BALTIMORE (AP) — A department store Santa Claus wears a $100 suit, works out of the weather and makes extravagant promises for which he never will be called to account.

He sits on what can only be described as a throne, admired by children and smiled on benignly by old ladies.

But the work is not without hazards, as I discovered when I sat in for two hours in a downtown emporium for the regular Santa Claus.

As I dressed, the Santa supervisor quoted the price of the costume — $100 for the red velvet suit, another $100 for the white wig and whiskers and $22 for the black boots.

Spirit of Christmas

"Try to remember you're not only representing the store, but to the children you're the spirit of Christmas," the supervisor said I said I'd try.

"Don't forget to give every one a balloon," he said.

The throne was surrounded by a squad of anxious children and impatient parents. "Ho, ho, ho," he said bravely, mounting the throne, "Merry Christmas."

At that a boy broke ranks and pounced on my lap. "I'm Ran-ny," he said, pre-empting my first question.

"Watcha gonna bring me for Christmas?" he demanded.

"What would you like," I countered, trying to gain control of the interview.

Questions Identity
"Are you really Santa Claus?" he asked. "Ho, ho, ho," I said defensively. "Cause if you are, how come you're askin' me what I want. Didn't you get my letter?" he said.

It was clear this boy did not wish me well.

"Santa gets so much mail," he said, "that sometimes it's difficult to remember just who wants what. Now, why don't you refresh Santa's memory."

"You've forgotten," he accused, and burst into tears.

His mother dislodged him from my knee. He recaptured loon.

whimper, "I wanna balloon."

The next customer was a year-old Sherrie. She wanted a talking doll and a wagon and a cap pistol. After her came Peter, another 4-year-old, and so on. It was easy sledding, so to speak.

Small Boy

During a lull, I noticed a small boy watching from a distance. His clothes were patched and soiled. He was alone.

I encouraged him to come nearer and finally coaxed him onto my knee. We established that he was James and he was 7 years old. "Well, James," I said, "what would you like Santa to bring for Christmas?"

"A coat," said James. A sensible choice, I thought. "You like one like that?" I said, pointing to a rack of children's clothes off to the right.

"No, you don't understand," he said. "I want it for my mother. She needs a coat."

"I'll see what I can do," said he. She needs a coat."

"Wouldn't you like a balloon?" he asked.

House Fires Kill 66 In Three-Day Period

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

At least 66 multiple fire deaths have been recorded over the nation in the last three days with more than half the victims children.

House fires killed six and seven persons at a time as cold weather gripped parts of the nation in advance of today's calendar start of the winter. Home furnaces were pushed to near maximum capacity.

The death toll by days:

Sunday: At least 20 dead, 14 children and six adults. A mother and her six youngsters perished in one upstate New York blaze.

23 Children

Saturday: At least 26 dead, 23 children and three adults, with one fire killing six youngsters, and two others claiming five each.

Friday: Fire swept a nursing home in Foundation, Ind., killing 20 elderly residents.

The upstate New York fire killed Mrs. Paul B. Breeden, 26, and her six children, aged 2 to 8, in their home in Palmyra, near Rochester.

The 31-year-old father returned home from a business trip to Chicago an hour after the blaze was discovered. Two adjacent homes also were destroyed but the occupants escaped.

Father and Sons

Also on Sunday:

In Tiffin, Ohio, a home fire claimed the lives of Robert A. Church, 32, a widower, and his three sons, aged 6 to 13. Near Pine River, Minn., while Mr. and Mrs. Charles Baker were at a dance for the benefit of a couple who were burned out a week ago, four of the six Baker children perished in their flaming home. The victims ranged from ages 2 to 9.

The fire was blamed on overheating of the stove and chimney.

The oldest child, Janice, 14, saved the youngest, Perry, 1, asleep in his parents' bedroom. The other youngsters were trapped in a second bedroom.

In East Wenatchee, Wash., fire swept the home of John E. Stull, 58, and his wife, Renie, killing them both.

An explosion and fire ravaged a two-story home in Wichita Falls, Tex., killing Wyletta Thornton, 3.

In New York City, separate home fires killed Isaac Watson, 75, and Francisca Cruz, 22.

Boy, 7, Learning To Drive, Runs Over Father and Sister

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — A 7-year-old boy learning how to drive the new family car apparently confused the brakes with the accelerator.

David Brooks, father, Robert Brooks, 32, was standing nearby with sister Deborah, 8, begging her turn at the wheel.

The car slowed, said detective Sgt. Robert Frost, "and Brooks told the boy to put on the brakes. He apparently missed."

Across the parking lot at Hialeah Race Course Mrs. Brooks, angry that her husband was letting David drive, was walking home with two younger children.

She turned as the car shot forward. Brooks was killed instantly. Debbie died in surgery.

Robert Preston Enjoys Role of Ben Franklin

Discovers Patriot Might Have Been Our First President but for His Tory Son

BY HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Benjamin Franklin thought he might have become the first U.S. president had his son not been a Tory during the American Revolution.

This is one of the facts about the Founding Father that Robert Preston learned while studying for his role in the Broadway musical.

His portrayal requires a wig, and Bob has to shave his head each night before going on stage.

Role No Problem

Playing the role of a 70-year-old diplomat is no problem to the sprightly actor. He is used to roles older than his actual age.

"Even as a kid I never played anyone young," he said. "At 18, in my first film, I played Barbara Stanwyck's husband."

only played one juvenile part in my life, and found it so dull I never tried another."

Preston was born in Newton

Highlands, Mass., moved to California in childhood. After graduating from high school, he joined a repertory company headed by Tyrone Power's mother, and took part in 42 productions before being signed by Paramount Pictures.

He grew a mustache to make him look more mature, and during the next dozen years or so became one of the most versatile villains in screen history.

Preston proved his gift for comedy in Broadway revivals before his biggest hit as the rascally band instrument salesman in "The Music Man."

Enjoys His Work

"Everything I do is its own reward," he observed. "Anybody who works at anything he doesn't like has my sympathy. I feel sorry for actors who think their job is a chore."

"But I don't have many dislikes. I don't even dislike going to the dentist, because I accept it as necessary in the scheme of things," he said.

"I think a man's goal should be to work so as to please the best people in his own craft, and if he does that he is fairly well sure of pleasing the perceptive ones outside his craft."

Envy of Others

His gusty vitality is the envy of many fellow performers, but exuberance comes naturally to Preston. He believes in living life to the hilt.

"All I'm really interested in life outside of what I'm doing now is what I'm going to do next," he said.

"What defeats most people is their failure to keep themselves ready for the next opportunity. Opportunity doesn't knock. You can't sit by the phone waiting for it to ring you up. You have to go find it."

"My philosophy is to enjoy the things I have to do as much as I enjoy doing the things I don't have to do."

Peterson Delays Announcement On Future Plans

Taibot Peterson, chairman of the Wisconsin Republican Party, who has complained that the position has great responsibilities but very little authority, said Saturday he will make a formal announcement of his plans soon after the first of the year.

Peterson, 42, an executive with the Valley Works Corp. here, declined to answer when asked about reports that he will not seek a second term as head of the state GOP organization.

He said he has been asked to continue in the post. The party chairman is selected by the Republican executive committee.

Ody Fish, director of the successful campaign by Gov.-elect Warren Knowles, is regarded as a possible candidate for the chairmanship. Fish, 39, head of a packaging firm at Hartland, has indicated he would be interested in the post but would not run if Peterson sought a second term.

8-9 (Channel 4-5) — A big, splashy production number, "The Most Wonderful Time of the Year," sets the theme on The Andy Williams Show, which is celebrating the season with gusto. He has invited his family in for the occasion. Others on hand are the Osmond Brothers, Senor Wences who telephones Santa, and the singing Young Americans. (COLOR)

8-30-9 (Channel 2) — Everybody else may be having a good time during the Christmas season, but Walter Burnley (John McGiver) is up against an age-old problem on Many Happy Returns. The complaint department manager is out to trap a shoplifter who is making his days unmythical ones indeed.

8-30-9 (Channel 11) — To many people Christmas isn't Christmas unless Bing Crosby sings "White Christmas." Fans of his series, The Bing Crosby Show, won't be disappointed.

9-10 (Channel 2) — While the rest of the country may be joyful, CBS News visits a part of the country where Dec. 25 will be just another day — and a bleak one: Christmas in Appalachia.

9-10 (Channel 4-5) — James Caan plays an ambitious would-be writer who wants to get the scoop on New York juvenile gangs in The Alfred Hitchcock Hour. To gather material for his book, he masquerades as a "Brooklyn hood" who knows his way with a zip gun and a stiletto.

African Congo Becomes Main Arena for World's Cold War

Chances for Development In Orderly Fashion Dim

BY WILLIAM L. RYAN

Chances for orderly development of the Congo are dim as and of leaders hostile to the United States has gone all out with the United States to crush pence. That key country in trying to turn him into the "people's rebellions." the heart of Africa may be winning the melancholy distinction of becoming the main arena in the cold war.

In general, the U.S. aim in the Congo has been to keep it together and to keep the Communists out. If stability is the key to achieving this, it will be a tough struggle.

There is not much leadership timber to choose from. In the thin ranks of what is available, politics is a matter of every man for himself. The outs battle the ins, and the ins battle the outs.

Any Congo leader who is satisfactory to the United States will be opposed by the Communists, and probably also by many African leaders whose pan-African patriotism is cloak vaulting ambitions of their own.

Moise Tshombe came to power as premier last July. Since then propaganda of Communists for influence, both denounced the Adoula as a man conspiring with the United States to crush the "people's rebellions."

Finally, last June, Adoula returned, this time to Leopoldville, with promise to form a "government of national reconciliation" and achieve "miracles within three months." No sooner had he taken over than Kindu fell to rebels whose trace to colonialism in the east, and, soon after, Stanleyville.

Tshombe's army was in disarray. Tshombe himself desperately tried to accommodate all sides, even the Communist-supported "Council for National Liberation," which would cheerfully have nailed his hide to the wall.

Late in November, Belgium and the United States mounted a rescue operation to save hostages from rebel savagery in Stanleyville. African leaders hostile to the United States joined a chorus of denunciation, contending Americans thought more of a white man's life than a black man's.

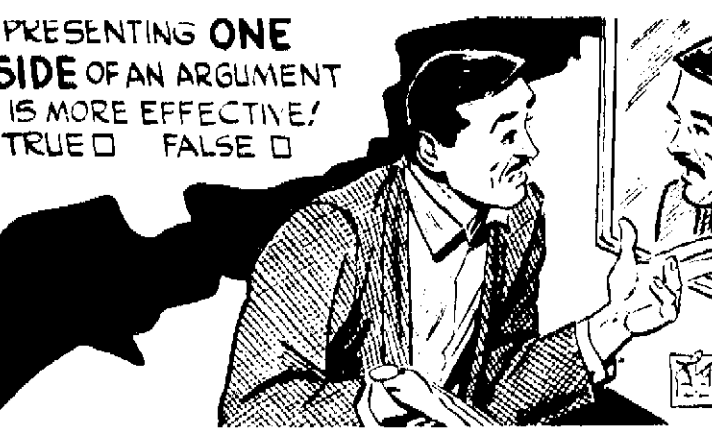

But the dreary debate which continues in the United Nations makes it clear that the intervention was not so much the target as Tshombe. Leaders with ambitions of their own portray him as a man who would re-establish colonialism.

There is small comfort for the West in the Soviet-Chinese competition in Africa. When either Communist side gains, the West loses. And Communist propaganda of one sort or another is making headway. If the Communists goal is chaos, it is far easier to achieve than stability.

One detects in the United States a weariness with African diplomacy. America still has friends among the more mature African leaders. The weariness with the others can lead to the growing sentiment for concentrating U.S. efforts on countries where they will be welcomed.

Let's EXPLORE YOUR MIND

By Sylvanus M. Duvall, Ph.D. and Evelyn M. Duvall, Ph.D.

PRESENTING ONE SIDE OF AN ARGUMENT IS MORE EFFECTIVE! TRUE OR FALSE?

False, not if you wish to open to "Let's Explore Your Mind." change people. Studies of the effects of communications with American troops in war time showed that if only one side of the question was presented, those who already believed it were strengthened in their convictions. But those who did not already believe it remained essentially unchanged. If both sides were presented, those who opposed the position of the speakers were more likely to change. This is one of the premises presented in greater detail in the booklet, "How To Persuade People." If you would like a copy, send 20 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to: "Let's Explore Your Mind," care The Appleton Post-Crescent, Appleton, Wis.

Should psychology "accentuate the positive"?

Yes — No —

Yes, says one psychologist, but it usually doesn't. Psychology, he complains, is usually content either with pure descriptions or with helping us to get along with ourselves and others, or to cope with some problem. He feels strongly that it should be concerned more with being beautiful, art, recreation and the sheer joy of living. It ought to help us to build people up constructively.

Young Hobby Club Soda Straws Can Become Holiday Tree Decorations

BY CAPPY DICK

Soda straws can be turned into eye-catching Christmas tree ornaments. They are so easy to make that in half an hour any boy or girl can produce a dozen of them.

Use plastic straws of various colors—red, orange, green and blue. If these are not available, the straws made of waxed paper in bright colors will do.

Cut a bunch of them into three-inch lengths. Hold a bundle of 12 or 15 or the short pieces so they are even at each end and wind a fine wire around the center. Twist the wire as tightly as you can, causing the straws to bend outward like the quills of a porcupine (Figure 1). Form a loop of the wire by which to hang the decoration on a branch of the Christmas tree.

With scissors, slash the ends of each straw four or five times to make five or six curled petals. Make the slashes only about an eighth-inch long. Curl the petals outward by pressing them with your fingers. The straws will now look like Figure 2. Hang the ornaments on the tree branches as the boy is doing in Figure 3.

Your Money's Worth Why President Turns Off Electric Lights

BY SYLVIA PORTER

I know why President Johnson goes around turning off the lights—and it's a much more complicated explanation than the popular one that he's trying to economize. Johnson obviously wants to eliminate waste in government, and when he turns off a light it's an amusing symbol of his frugality. But, beyond this, I submit the basic reason is that to Lyndon B. Johnson an electric light is among the most precious services in the world. To him, an electric light is not something to be taken for granted, but, rather, it's a privilege to be conserved and treasured.

Porter

Because of his background—where, how and when he grew up—I think Johnson actually has a compulsion to save on light bills.

Visits His Home Of course, Johnson didn't tell me any of this (and he doesn't know I know). But a short while ago, I visited the rugged hill country of central Texas in which the President was born and in which he still has his home, saw how rural the area is even today. I went to Johnson City, looked at the attractive headquarters of the Pedernales Electric Cooperative, Inc.—the rural electric cooperative of which Johnson is a member. And suddenly, I knew why Johnson turns off the lights. . . . This tale goes back more than a quarter-century to the mid-1930s, when the Rural Electrification Administration was created to finance extension of electric power to people in rural areas of the U.S.

Unless you are old enough to remember the 1930s and lived in a farm region in that era, you can't imagine how it was. In 1935 only one farm in every 10 in the U.S. had commercial electric service. In Johnson's area, where farms and ranches were widely separated, there

1,718 miles of line to serve 3,459 consumers. But since the area's population density was below average for a typical REA-approved project, the Pedernales had to establish painfully high rates. The minimum bill for the first 25 kilowatt-hours used each month was set at $2.45 and the minimum bill for the first 100 kwh per month was set at $5.70. These minimums were so high that they were almost self-defeating. Johnson, therefore, moved again. This time he helped work out an agreement under which the Lower Colorado River Authority (a Texas State electric power agency) took over operation of Pedernales. Secured New Rate The agreement was signed in May 1940—and the Pedernales minimum bill for 25 kwh per month was slashed from $2.45 to $1.25, while the minimum bill for 100 kwh was cut from $5.70 to only $3.00. Now, all rural areas in the U.S. have electric light and the Pedernales modern U.S. farm has more than 400 different uses for electricity. Now the electric light is so common in rural America that it was in 1962 the Agriculture Department dropped it as a criterion for picture. He personally went into the field to solicit and sign up. But Johnson remembers the depression 1930s. He cannot forget how great was the struggle to bring the electric light to his hometown and what it meant to pay $5.70 for just 100 kwh a month. That's why the President of the United States turns off the REA loan for construction of lights.

Science Shrinks Piles New Way Without Surgery Stops Itch—Relieves Pain

New York, N. Y. (Special) — For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids, stop itching, and relieve pain—without surgery.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by a doctor's observations.

Pain was relieved promptly. And, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place. And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in cases where a doctor's observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such astonishing statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of 10 to 20 years' standing.

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne)—the discovery of a world-famous research institution. Already, Bio-Dyne is in wide use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body.

This new healing substance is offered in suppository or ointment form called Preparation H. Ask for individually sealed convenient Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment with special applicator. Preparation H is sold at all drug counters.

What Next? MU Computer Sings Carols

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Looking at IBM-1620 you wouldn't think he was the type to be full of the Christmas spirit.

But there he was, in Room 107 of the Marquette University engineering building, singing Christmas carols along with 70 or 80 students who showed up Friday for a little holiday party.

"Jingle Bells," "God Rest Ye Merry, Gentlemen," and "We Three Kings of the Orient Are," echoed through the hallways. And IBM-1620 joined right along.

Not that he has a good voice. What could you expect from a gadget that spends most of its working hours solving mathematical problems?

Human Help Admittedly, IBM-1620 had a little human help when he turned his talents to singing.

Robert Robinson, director of the university computing center, said it was discovered that certain instructions given to the computer cause its circuitry to generate impulses in the radio frequency range. By putting a transistor radio next to IBM-1620, the sounds could be made loud enough to hear all around the room.

What the computer does, Robinson said, is receive a coded message on punch cards, with a certain code for each note.

"He can play anything from 'Hungarian Rhapsody' to 'Tico Tico,'" said Robinson.

Oklahoma Judge Released on Parole

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP) — N. S. Corn, a retired justice of the Oklahoma Supreme Court, has been released on parole from the U.S. Medical Center where he was serving a sentence of 18 months for evasion of federal income taxes.

The 80-year-old judge was sentenced and fined $11,250 last July after he pleaded no defense against the charges.

Festive Mood Reigns at Charity Ball

It was a night for sparkle. North Shore Golf Club set the theme for the glow inside with its huge outdoor tree in a shining gown of many colors. Inside, at the Infant Welfare Circle of The King's Daughters 32nd annual Charity Ball, lovely ladies continued the festive color scheme.

Long gowns were the rule, rather than the exception. There were elegant sequins, satins in deep red and green, gold, silver, blue and all the happy colors of the season. Greetings were gay and more often than not included the words, "Merry Christmas". Inside North Shore's foyer, guests were splashed by the candle glow light of a 20-foot tree that brushed the ceiling and cast its shine from dozens of golden filtered filaments.

Even the weather man added to the festive air. The snow that made the holiday scene a shimmering Christmas card left Charity Ball-goers undaunted. Many of the women covered their smart coiffures with filmy scarves, and not a few donned boots over dancing slippers.

Mrs. Andrew Sharp and Mrs. Henry Bailey were party co-chairmen.

Mr. and Mrs. Chandler Rowe, 1015 E. Jardin St., were hosts at a dinner before Saturday evening's party at North Shore Golf Club. ## Use Skis as Table For Picnic in Snow

This winter more and more can be a good mixer for soup or families will take to the slopes chocolate syrup to warm you as a group when skiing season up. Stainless steel cups and gets underway. From happy plates from dad's camping toddlers and fearless teen-agers equipment, knives, spoons, can to fairly expert fathers and opener and a plentiful supply of timid mothers, skiing is one napkins complete mountain picnic that every member of the nic needs. For dessert and family can enjoy.

Once at the mountain, every-one can separate to try his skill on trails suited to his ability and plan to meet again at lunchtime.

As the sun raises the temperature at mid-day, you can enjoy the crisp clear air to the utmost with an outdoor picnic. As an extra thrill for less accomplished skiers in the family, pick a site midway up the mountain, off to the side of a long novice runout.

A Dry Lunch

All the picnic essentials can be packed in a picnic hamper which dad can probably manage on the chairlift. To insure a dry lunch, a homemaking consultant suggests you rely on food packaged in cans: canned meat and cheese spreads for sandwiches, condensed soups, chocolate syrup and even canned bread. Such food offers complete freshness and protection against snow, wind and moisture.

An unbreakable stainless steel vacuum jug filled with hot milk

In place of the traditional checked tablecloth, spread dad's poncho on well-packed snow. For those who prefer a buffet two pairs of skis tips down, supported by steel ski poles, will provide a sturdy makeshift table.

All eating utensils can be rinsed in snow as part of after-meal cleanup. Dad can pack leftovers and refuse in his poncho and ski the lightened hamper back down the mountain before the family takes off for an afternoon of skiing.

Scottish Bank Is Only for Women

The National Commercial Bank of Scotland is thinking of women. A ladies-only branch wiches, condensed soups, chocolate syrup and even canned bread. Such food offers complete freshness and protection against snow, wind and moisture.

Thick carpets, soft lights, tea, piped in music and easy check-cashing facilities are some of the special extras.

British Study Lists Measle Complications

The November-December issue of World-Wide Abstracts of General Medicine reports that one child in 15 suffers a potentially serious complication as a result of common measles. This figure was arrived at by examining records of more than 53 thousand English children who contracted the disease in the 1963 English epidemic. Some 3,500 had complications, 12 of whom died.

One child in 1,000 suffered from encephalitis or 'impaired consciousness' as a complication. Thirty-eight in 1,000 developed pneumonia or bronchitis and 25 potentially serious complication as a result of common measles. Three in each 1,000 developed neurological disturbances short of encephalitis or 'impaired consciousness.'

Christmas Brought to Village In Chile Just a Year Ago

BY JUDITH ST. JOHN

Santa Claus riding a tractor—Easter bread for Christmas. To the villagers of El Transito in a beautiful northern Chile river valley, these were just two highlights of a real family Christmas, the first many of them had ever known.

Though Chile is considered a Catholic country, religious practices of most of the low socioeconomic level people are clouded with superstition and ignorance. In years past, the holy season meant little more than extremely warm mid-summer weather and an increase in the already serious local drinking problem.

1963 was different. An involved and fascinated observer of the change was Patricia Beard, who returned in June from two years with the Peace Corps. Last December she was serving with the Chilean Institute of Rural Education, IER, teaching food preservation to the women. Her base was La Serena, and for some months she'd been giving demonstrations between that city and El Transito, 200 miles north.

Needed Rest

"I was really game for a little vacation about then," says Pat. The regional Peace Corps director in Santiago obliged, making arrangements for the northern area volunteers to take a Christmas break. It wouldn't be all relaxation however. A three day conference for the regional corpsmen was noted on his calendar—to begin the day after Christmas.

"He wrote that we could spend Christmas day wherever we chose, and then come to the talks in Santiago. Several weeks before we'd had a meeting in La Serena with the Chilean volunteers. They told me a very special family holiday was being planned in El Transito and asked me to come. It was so far north that I knew I couldn't possibly go and still make the conference on time. But I accepted the invitation and went anyway. I left La Serena on Saturday, the 21st, arrived in the village Monday, and left early Christmas day."

Although two days late for the conference, Pat Beard wouldn't mind. This story was written by the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. St. John, 1342 W. Lawrence St. A graduate of Appleton High School and Cardinal Stritch College, Milwaukee, the young woman is a graduate student at the University of Wisconsin, where she met Miss Beard, the Peace Corps returnee who is also in graduate school. Miss Beard, working in foods and nutrition, plans to return to Chile in about two years to work for the Institute of Rural Education, a Chilean organization. Her family lives in Sacramento, Calif.

have missed her Christmas in El Transito for the world.

Worldly-Wise

"Project Christmas" had started with the new town policeman, Eduardo. A few months before he'd been transferred from sophisticated, cosmopolitan Santiago. He was, however, a very natural, likeable person and because he was educated people soon regarded him as a leader. He'd seen a lot in the capital city—even a few European style Christmases.

"Very few people in Chile really celebrate Christmas as we do," Pat explained, "but there is more of it in cities than in towns."

Eduardo knew well how past Christmases had been observed in El Transito, and it disturbed him that most children didn't even know what the Nativity was. In mid-October he began to gather ideas from the villagers and to work these and his own ideas into a plan. Some of the organization was informal, but most centered on a definite program for Christmas Eve. Suggestions he wanted and suggestions he received. They came from people of every kind and size. Before long, definite activities were being formulated.

Religious Service

First there was to be a simple church service. Since there was no priest in the vicinity and mass could not be offered they decided on a community rosary. "The Nativity"—a play: a huge tree in the town plaza, a visit from Santa—with gifts, and refreshments for the children were soon added to the plan.

The more El Transito heard of fiesta preparations, the more their curiosity grew. Before they knew it, they were volunteering for one committee or another.

The young officer gained even more cooperation by delegating supervision of some of the efforts.

Says Pat, "A couple who ran the customs office took over play rehearsals and the 30 children in the cast. Villagers gave them lots of help with this and their cocoa concession."

Met Friend

"Shortly after I arrived in El Transito on Monday, I ran into a friend, Quito Gaytan, working in the plaza. He and his family were always involved in some community activity, so it was only natural for him to handle the technical details of the project."

"The village square was strung with colored lights. Also, he and a group of men had set up the plaza, putting the tree in one corner, the stage in another and the podium in the center."

Eduardo was a very nice person and grateful for my offer of help. He suggested doing something with a group of young girls who wanted to participate. Christmas cookies seemed just the thing.

"Since it was getting late that day, we decided to start early Tuesday. Carmen, Quito's 16 year old sister, rounded up a dozen interested girls and they spent the rest of Monday gathering ingredients."

Sugar Cookies

"Christmas Eve morning we started our plain old sugar cookies. One woman let us use her gas stove, the only one in town. We lacked a couple of ingredients, but the girls improvised beautifully."

"Lard wasn't bad in place of butter—especially after they doctored the mixture with lemon juice. It wasn't so easy to substitute for eggs. That's why I hopped on Quito's horse and sent around the countryside collecting as many as people would donate. They're pretty scarce in the valley and after an hour I only had eight of them. I was trotting back when a young friend, Lorenzo came zooming around a bend on his motorcycle. The horse reared up, spun in a few circles and shook me so much that I was positive I'd dropped the basket. Someone was protecting the cause, I guess, because not one egg was even cracked."

When the precious eggs arrived, the young bakers got right at it. Mixing, rolling, and cutting was done in one family's home, then the pans were taken next door to the house with the oven for baking.

"The oven had built-in sheet pans instead of grill racks. That way we could bake the cookies right on those pans."

"The girls had never done anything quite like this before and really got a bang out of cutting the little diamonds, circles, and ribbons. We had some old dry food coloring that they reconstituted to make bright red, blue, and yellow powdered sugar icings."

After finishing eight large

Miss Pat Beard, Wearing her poncho, hangs an ornament similar to ones used to trim the tree in El Transito, Chile, just a year ago. A graduate student at the University of Wisconsin this year, the former Peace Corps worker helped the little village observe Christmas for the first time a year ago. She plans to return there after finishing her studies at the UW.

batches of cookies, Pat and the king's appearance, the nativity girls started for the yet un-play truly impressed the spectators. The way, several villagers. Applauds was finally over-greeted them with the tradition-whelmed by the putt-putting of an ancient tractor. It coughed its way down the main street with Quito at the wheel and Santa Claus behind him, waving at the crowd.

The jolly old man's suit was a faded red sweatshirt that once belonged to Pat's Peace Corps co-worker. Santa, also the town storekeeper, had made himself more north pole-ish by adding a pillow and a fuzzy white beard.

He looked every inch the part and it didn't take the children long to develop a fondness for him. They liked this new custom, especially when Santa distributed little plastic cars, dolls, and games to everyone.

All Helped

The gifts were the results of efforts of many village women, said Pat. "They call it Easter bread, but it's traditional for both feasts."

Like Eggnog

"Another custom is a drink called 'Cola de Mono.' Monkey's Tail. They make it from a strong and flavorful it took awhile Chilean brandy, cognac, milk, and cinnamon. It reminds you of our eggnog—really good."

At seven in the evening, to munch cookies and drink people left their homes for the cocoa while their parents talked formal activities in the center over the events of that night—of town. The first phase started slowly and for a time it looked eleven-thirty most families had as though the project might fail. Besides Eduardo, Lorenzo, and Quito, very few men entered the church.

"Christmas or not, to many of them religion is strictly women stuff," explained Pat.

Nearly all, however, joined great thing was that they'd done their families in the plaza for most of the work themselves, co-play. Mothers had spent operating wonderfully," said hours on the elaborate costumes. Scenery was complete with stable, shrubs and sheep. Beard passed the little plaza on but the children proved to be her way to Santiago. Across the delights of a beautiful from the church there stood a presentation.

"They were tremendous. So scene, and an old tractor. angelic. So natural. Not one was. She knew that neither she nor a bit frightened," said Pat. the villagers would ever forget From the paper-winged angels that first Christmas in El visit to Mary through the last Transito.

Mate With Signs of Mental Illness Causes Wife's Despair

BY ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband is 33. I am 30. My story is so weird I'm afraid to tell anyone, but I'm desperate. Our home was happy until six months ago, when my husband began to complain about my cooking—said he got indigestion after every meal. About six weeks ago he blurted out (in front of the children), "I know what's wrong with the food in this house. You are trying to poison me."

I asked him where he got an idea like that and he said, "I am receiving thought waves through my electric shaver."

Last week he began to buy food for himself at the delicatessen. He brings it home and eats with us.

Yesterday he said he wasn't going to give me any more money because his shaver told him I am interested in another man and that I am trying to get rid of him. (My husband is part owner of a business and draws $1500 a month.)

I need advice desperately but I'm afraid to discuss this with anyone. Help me, please! — Frantic

Dear Frantic: Your husband is mentally ill and should see a doctor at once.

Ask him what he hears from his shaver about his legal obligation to support his family. If he doesn't hear anything soon tell him he'll be getting a message from your lawyer.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was struck by your sound advice to the person who wrote, suggesting that any male found guilty of a second sex offense should be surgically altered by the government. The hook lies of course in the phrase "found guilty." Adolph Eichman decided, all by himself, who was guilty."

I concur with your view, Ann, that sex offenders should be placed under the care of competent psychiatrists. Sex offenders have diseased minds and giving them jail sentences does not solve the problem.

I believe, too, that educating people would go a long way toward decreasing the number of sex crimes. The following rules, if observed, could prevent some of the tragedies we read about daily:

Parents should not leave children under 12 years of age alone.

Parents should insist that their children come straight home after school, or they should know where they are going and with whom.

Children should be trained not to accept car rides, candy or money from strangers.

Sitters should be instructed to keep the doors bolted and to open them for no one. — C. C.

Dear C. C. F.: Thank you

Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am visiting in the home of my sister. I am not a frequent visitor. This is my first trip in six years. I plan to stay 10 days.

Last night my sister said, "I was invited to this luncheon and card party several weeks ago—before I knew you'd be here. I hope you don't mind being alone today."

I said nothing, but the more I thought about it the madder I got. I would not have left her alone in my home under similar circumstances. Am I being unduly sensitive? — Twiddling my Thumbs

Dear Twiddling: No. Your sister should have telephoned the hostess when she learned you were coming to visit. If the hostess did not suggest that she bring you, your sister should have stayed at home.

The Ailing House Paint Peels On House Overhang

BY ROGER C. WHITMAN
Q: Is there any remedy for paint that cracks and peels on the overhang of a house? Anything to prevent future painting from doing the same thing?
A: The usual cause for paint peeling is moisture working from underneath and forcing the paint off the surface. Frequently, the area in the overhang is improperly ventilated, with no air circulation, so that moisture accumulates. Installing miniature vents at intervals in the overhang, to allow the escape of the moisture directly to the outdoors, is often successful in remedying this condition. Available large hardware dealers.

Q: We have inlaid linoleum in our kitchen. The seam in it is getting loose in one place. We are tripping over it and chipping the linoleum. How can we get it to stay down? The linoleum is still in good shape.
A: With a thin screw driver or spatula, force some linoleum paste into the loosened area. Then weight the section down with heavy books or pails of water and allow to remain for at least 24 hours, until the paste hardens and dries. Wipe off any paste that oozes out immediately with a damp cloth; removal later is extremely difficult. To prevent the seam loosening again, avoid using too much water when cleaning the linoleum. The water seeps in at the seam, softening the adhesive.
Q: We have a round varnished oak table and six matching chairs which we want to refinish. We plan to remove the present varnish finish down to bare wood and want the new finish to be a limed oak. How do we continue?
A: After you have removed the present finish, bleach the bare wood with a prepared commercial bleach, available at paint stores, following label directions carefully. Then brush on liberally, with the grain, a white or liquid gray paste filler, thinned with turpentine to the consistency of thick paint. When the filler begins to set (in about 20 minutes) wipe the surface across the grain with a coarse cloth. What remains in the grain, or pores, is allowed to dry hard and is then made smooth by rubbing with very fine sandpaper. Wipe off the dust and finish with a light-colored varnish.

One U. S. Family in Ten Now Headed by Woman

The debate has been going on for centuries: women are thus, least one school-age child. An women are that... they're additional 23 per cent have a too competitive or too docile, too independent or not independent enough. Fascinating as it is, the debate is probably of only academic interest to the women who, sometimes out of choice, but most often out of necessity, now head more than one-tenth of all American families. Who are these women? What are their families like? What special problems do they face, and how are they faring? According to government figures about half of the five million women heading their own families are widows who have not remarried. Slightly under two million are divorced, separated or married and not living with their husbands. The other half million are single women with dependents. In one third of the families headed by women there's at least one school-age child. An additional 23 per cent have a child under six. The remaining families comprise older children living at home, dependent parents or other relatives. As far as the economics of life, the picture is not too bright for most families headed by a woman. The average income of this group is about $3,200—roughly half that of families with both the husband and wife present. Helping to account for the difference is the fact that relatively few families headed by a woman have more than one earner (in husband-wife families, nearly half have two or more breadwinners). In over a fifth of all families headed by women there isn't even one paycheck coming in. Many of these families include pre-school children, whose mothers often find it difficult to take on a regular job. To further complicate matters, a large share of women in this group lack skills or education required by many kinds of employment today. Family Earnings All in all, a little more than half of the women heading up families are employed, and only a third are full-time workers. According to the last Census, the job earnings of the entire group averaged about $2,000 a year, and just one out of ten earned over $5,000. Even allowing for the general rise in wages and employment since 1960, it's evident that many women are unable to support their families unaided. Their main source of financial assistance is the government's Aid to Families with Dependent Children program, which provides regular payments to over a half million families headed by a woman. Assistance of a different type is provided by a variety of public and private social agencies, church groups and community organizations. Thanks to their efforts, women with family responsibilities can obtain home-maker services or day care facilities for young children, occupational training and psychological counseling, even guidance in managing family finances. As one social worker explains it, "the less money is available in a family, the more important it is to manage it wisely and to put first things first." In general, families headed by a woman generally have less savings or insurance protection than other families. Nevertheless, 70 per cent of women in this group do have insurance compared with 85 per cent of men who are heads of families with both husband and wife present.

Today's Etiquette

OFF-YEAR CELEBRATION
Dear Louise: Our parents were married 25 years in 1962, but at that time my sister and I were in no financial position to give an anniversary party. We felt bad about this and are sure our parents were disappointed. Now we are able to do something but are not sure when the proper time would be. Next June will be their 27th anniversary. Could we have a party then?
Louise Davis Answers:
If you don't wish to wait for the 30th anniversary, it would be all right to entertain next spring but I strongly advise that you eliminate any reference to the wedding anniversary. People would wonder why you would be entertaining on an off year. Mentioning the anniversary with your invitations would also obligate all of your guests to get gifts. You would want to avoid that. I suggest that if you wish to do something next spring, you just entertain with an Open House with you, your husband, your sister and her husband as host and hostess. Arriving guests would soon know of the anniversary. Your parents of course would be receiving with you which gives them the honored place.
BOARDING HOUSE REACH
Dear Louise: Is it correct for a husband to reach over to his wife's plate in a restaurant to sample some of her dessert?
Louise Davis Answers:
No.

Too Much Bravery Is Possible

BY ALFRED SHEINWOLD

If you want people to think well of you, at least at the bridge table, practice moderation in your virtue. For example, perseverance is a fine quality, but if you persevere too long people will say that you are a stubborn blockhead. If you find this hard to believe, look at today's hand.

East plays the jack of diamonds at the first trick, and South must refuse to win. East continues with the queen of diamonds, and South must again play low. If South took the first or second diamond trick, the defenders would eventually get the king of clubs and rest of the diamonds, defeating the contract.

When South plays a low diamond at the second trick, West must see the difference between perseverance and stubbornness. The time has come to abandon the diamonds.

It does no good for West to play a low diamond at the second trick. East gets nowhere whether he continues with a third diamond or switches to the king of spades.

Takes Nine Tricks

Either way South takes nine tricks. He can win either the ace of diamonds or the ace of spades, depending on which suit is led at the third trick. South tries the club finesse; losing to the king of clubs. The defender can take, at most, two diamonds, one club and one spade. South is sure of four clubs, three hearts, one diamond and one spade.

West can avoid this by playing the king of diamonds at the second trick, getting the lead into his own hand. West then switches to the ten of spades. He knows that there is no future in the diamonds and Bridge must hope that his partner has spade strength.

This switch settles South's hash. He must lose three spades and a club in addition to the two diamonds already surrendered to the defenders.

Daily Question

Partner opens with one club, and the next player passes. You hold: S 10 9 6; H 10 8 5 3; D K 8 7 3 2; C 7. What do you say?

Answer: Pass. You have only 3 points in high cards and should count nothing for a singleton in partner's suit. This is not enough for a response. If partner had opened with one heart or one diamond, you would count 3 points for the singleton and would then have the enough for a raise to two of

You Can Avoid Some Christmas Hazards

BY JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M. D.
Let's dispense with medical ailments today — except for emergencies such as burns, sprains, lacerations and other possible holiday casualties.

Molner

Call me Old Scrooge if you must, but people still get hurt by sheer neglect on Christmas Day and I don't want it to happen to any of my readers.

The picturesque, foolhardy custom of burning candles on the tree is gone, but some have replaced it. Too many strings of electric lights on the same outlet can overload the wiring and cause a fire. (It can't happen if you keep proper-size fuses in place, though. Don't put higher-rating fuses in if one blows. And don't put a penny behind a blown fuse.) Worn insulation in strings of lights is an invitation to either shock or fire. Two bare wires don't have to touch to make a short circuit. Once I got quite a filled with water, which will add moisture to the tree and will keep the needles from falling. Read the directions. Things string was making connections (through me!) via the metallic tinsel on the tree to a worn place in another string of lights. So I replaced those strings. Can Get Hot If you've changed bulbs on a tree, you know how hot they can get. Don't have them nestled against something that is burn- Turn off the decorative lights when you go to bed or leave the house. Yes, I know. They don't look as pretty turned off, but Select a tree stand that can be filled with water, which will add moisture to the tree and will keep the needles from falling. Read the directions. Things your tree with fireproofing material. If you still smoke, try to quit long enough while the presents are being unwrapped. Smoldering butts and flicks of ashes can sometimes set fire to a snow-storm of wrapping paper. Most physicians receive emergency calls on Christmas Day from people who could have avoided accidents by using common sense. I very vividly recall a hand, badly cut in the enthusiastic opening of a big package that happened to be a card table with fancy retracting legs. Got the hand snarled up with a sharp corner on the machinery he did. Read Directions Remember that chemistry sets should be used with caution. Read the directions. Things that shoot (bows and arrows, guns, toy cannons, etc.) should be fired only in suitable places, and after all the gifts have been opened. Following this simple rule can save Aunt Maxine from getting popped in the ear while she is innocently opening that bedjacket with the lavender rickrack. I'll add this: Fathers of the world, subside! Don't think you can roller skate, ice skate, ski, ride a bicycle, chin yourself or otherwise contort yourself "as well as you ever could." This sort of nonsense perhaps causes more misery than the other stupidities combined. But I'm not really a kill-joy. Have fun, friends. But if you have a fireplace, when you hang the socks don't hang 'em where, by remotest chance, they can catch fire. Toasted candy canes are messy. But fire at night is tragic. Dear Dr. Molner: Is age 39 too old to consider surgery on the nose? — MRS. P. F. J. No, certainly not. NOTE TO C. P.: "Tennis elbow" is another term for bursitis. Resting the afflicted joint for a time is part of the treatment. Forego bowling until your doctor gives his okay. Of all the problems that pediatricians encounter in children, pinworm is the commonest. To learn the newest methods of treatment for this pest, write for the booklet, "The Commonest Pest, Pinworm," enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 20 cents in coin to cover printing and handling. Dr. Molner welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

NLRB Ruling Violation of Constitution

Denies Freedom of Speech to Employer
In Labor Dispute

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — "Equal rights" and "freedom of speech" — which have been proclaimed as symbols of democracy — have a hollow sound today as the country is asked to accept a ruling just issued by the National Labor Relations Board denying to an employer the right to express his views to his employees except through the union representatives at the bargaining table.

An employer, if the order is sustained, would not be able to make a speech or write an article in the press or publish a pamphlet expressing his expression contains no threat or thoughts on questions arising reprisal or force or promise of with his own employees without benefit."

running the risk of a court decree compelling him to keep silent.

What Law Says

From time to time orders have been issued by the National Labor Relations Board prohibiting interference with collective bargaining by any form of coercion. But the latest ruling is far more sweeping than anything that has been issued in the past. The federal statute which governs collective bargaining is explicit in permitting free speech. The law says: "The expressing of any views, argument, or opinion, or the dissemination thereof, whether in written, printed, graphic, or visual form, shall not constitute a violation of this act."

Under earlier orders in this field, the National Labor Relations Board has properly ruled that an employer violated the law if he negotiated directly with his employees instead of through the union representatives. The board has also spoken out against any form of coercion or threat. But this is the first time that the issue has clearly been drawn on the right of free speech, which, of course, is guaranteed under the first amendment to the constitution.

General Electric Case

The new order was issued in a controversy between the General Electric Company and one of the unions of its employees. The board criticized some of the things that happened during the negotiations and charged that efforts were made to carry on an intensive communication campaign among the employees "to disparage and discredit" the union as the bargaining representative and to insist that the company's proposal be accepted.

The whole concept of fair collective bargaining has, of course, been considered in the courts ever since the Taft-Hartley Act was passed in 1947, and many interpretations of a constructive nature have been given which have clarified the collective-bargaining process. But the new dispute does not turn solely on the issue of what is good or bad in labor-management relations. It raises a bigger question — whether the first amendment to the constitution, which grants the citizen the right of free speech, now is to be limited so that it will not cover communications between an employer and his employees.

Court Decision

The Supreme Court of the United States, in one of its decisions, has said:

"Our labor policy is not presently erected on a foundation of government control of the results of negotiations. Nor does it contain a charter for the National Labor Relations Board to act at large in equalizing the disparities of bargaining power between employer and union."

While the language of the existing law itself, as written by congress, permits free speech, the issue really is whether an employer may express his opinions freely about matters of direct concern not only to him but to his employees. The theory seems to be that the employees themselves are not capable of judging whether or not the employer has made a good argument or whether the bargaining representatives are really reflecting the viewpoint of the employees.

Doesn't Inquire Into Intent

The dispute goes to the fundamental question of what is in the back of the mind of the person who happens to be exercising the right of free speech. The supreme court has declined to inquire into the intent of a man who makes a speech unless he goes so far as to incite to violence. There has never been any decision which limits free speech only to those points of view which are palatable to the listeners.

An interesting issue has been raised, also, as to whether a company can offer a proposal on a "take it or leave it" basis. The union argues that the employer must modify his offer and make concessions, or else he is not bargaining "in good faith." This means that, even though an employer may feel that he has gone as far as he can in an economic sense, he must go even further, or risk the penalty of a National Labor Relations Board order and perhaps even damages imposed upon him. In fact, there is a case pending before the supreme court now in which the Darlington Company actually closed its plant in South Carolina, and the National Labor

Weakness of English Pound Affecting U. S.

Uneasiness Cause Of Stock Market Ailments This Month

BY SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP) — The international financial doctors have taken the British pound sterling off the critical list but not off the ailing list.

And its continuing basic weakness still affects America's own financial status and planning — in world trade, interest rates, balance of payments, the world price of gold, even the worries besetting the stock market.

A $3 billion, 11-nation bailout fund halted a serious run on the pound and since then its exchange value has rallied. But the fundamental ailment — too much outgo of pounds for imports and too small a return flow of pounds for British exports — continues.

The uneasiness over the pound's future shows up in that very market — the futures market.

Spot Price Down

The spot price for pounds is $2.78 (against the official $2.80). But for 90-day delivery speculators or businessmen hedging their activities can buy the pound for $2.77.

The thinking is that the pound might still fall to that level, which is below the $2.78 at which the Bank of England is ordered to support it. So the fear of devaluation is diminished but not silenced.

The United States becomes involved both in furnishing the largest share of the $3 billion fund the Bank of England could use to bolster the pound against any day-by-day runs, and in the methods which Britain is taking to try to cure the real ailment — its balance of payments deficit.

Payments Postponed

The latest move — postponement of the repayment of $138.1 million in interest and principal due the United States this month on postwar loans — cuts the British deficit by that much.

It also increases America's own balance of payments deficit.

Estimates of this year's U.S. deficit, a bit in excess of $2 billion, were based on expectations of British payment, along with many other items. Postponement of payment will raise the U.S. deficit by $138 million. This may seem a small amount. But the deficit is the sum of many small amounts.

The United States has been affected directly by other measures the British government has taken in the last two months to fight off its financial ailment.

First it slapped a 15 per cent surcharge on most of its imports. Americans may see some of their British market shrink.

Interest Rate Up

Then the Bank of England boosted its lending charge to 7 per cent from 5 per cent. The U.S. comparable charge, the Federal Reserve discount rate, was quickly raised to 4 per cent from 3½ per cent. Other short-term interest rates in America rose, but so far the government has discouraged any increase in long-term interest rates here.

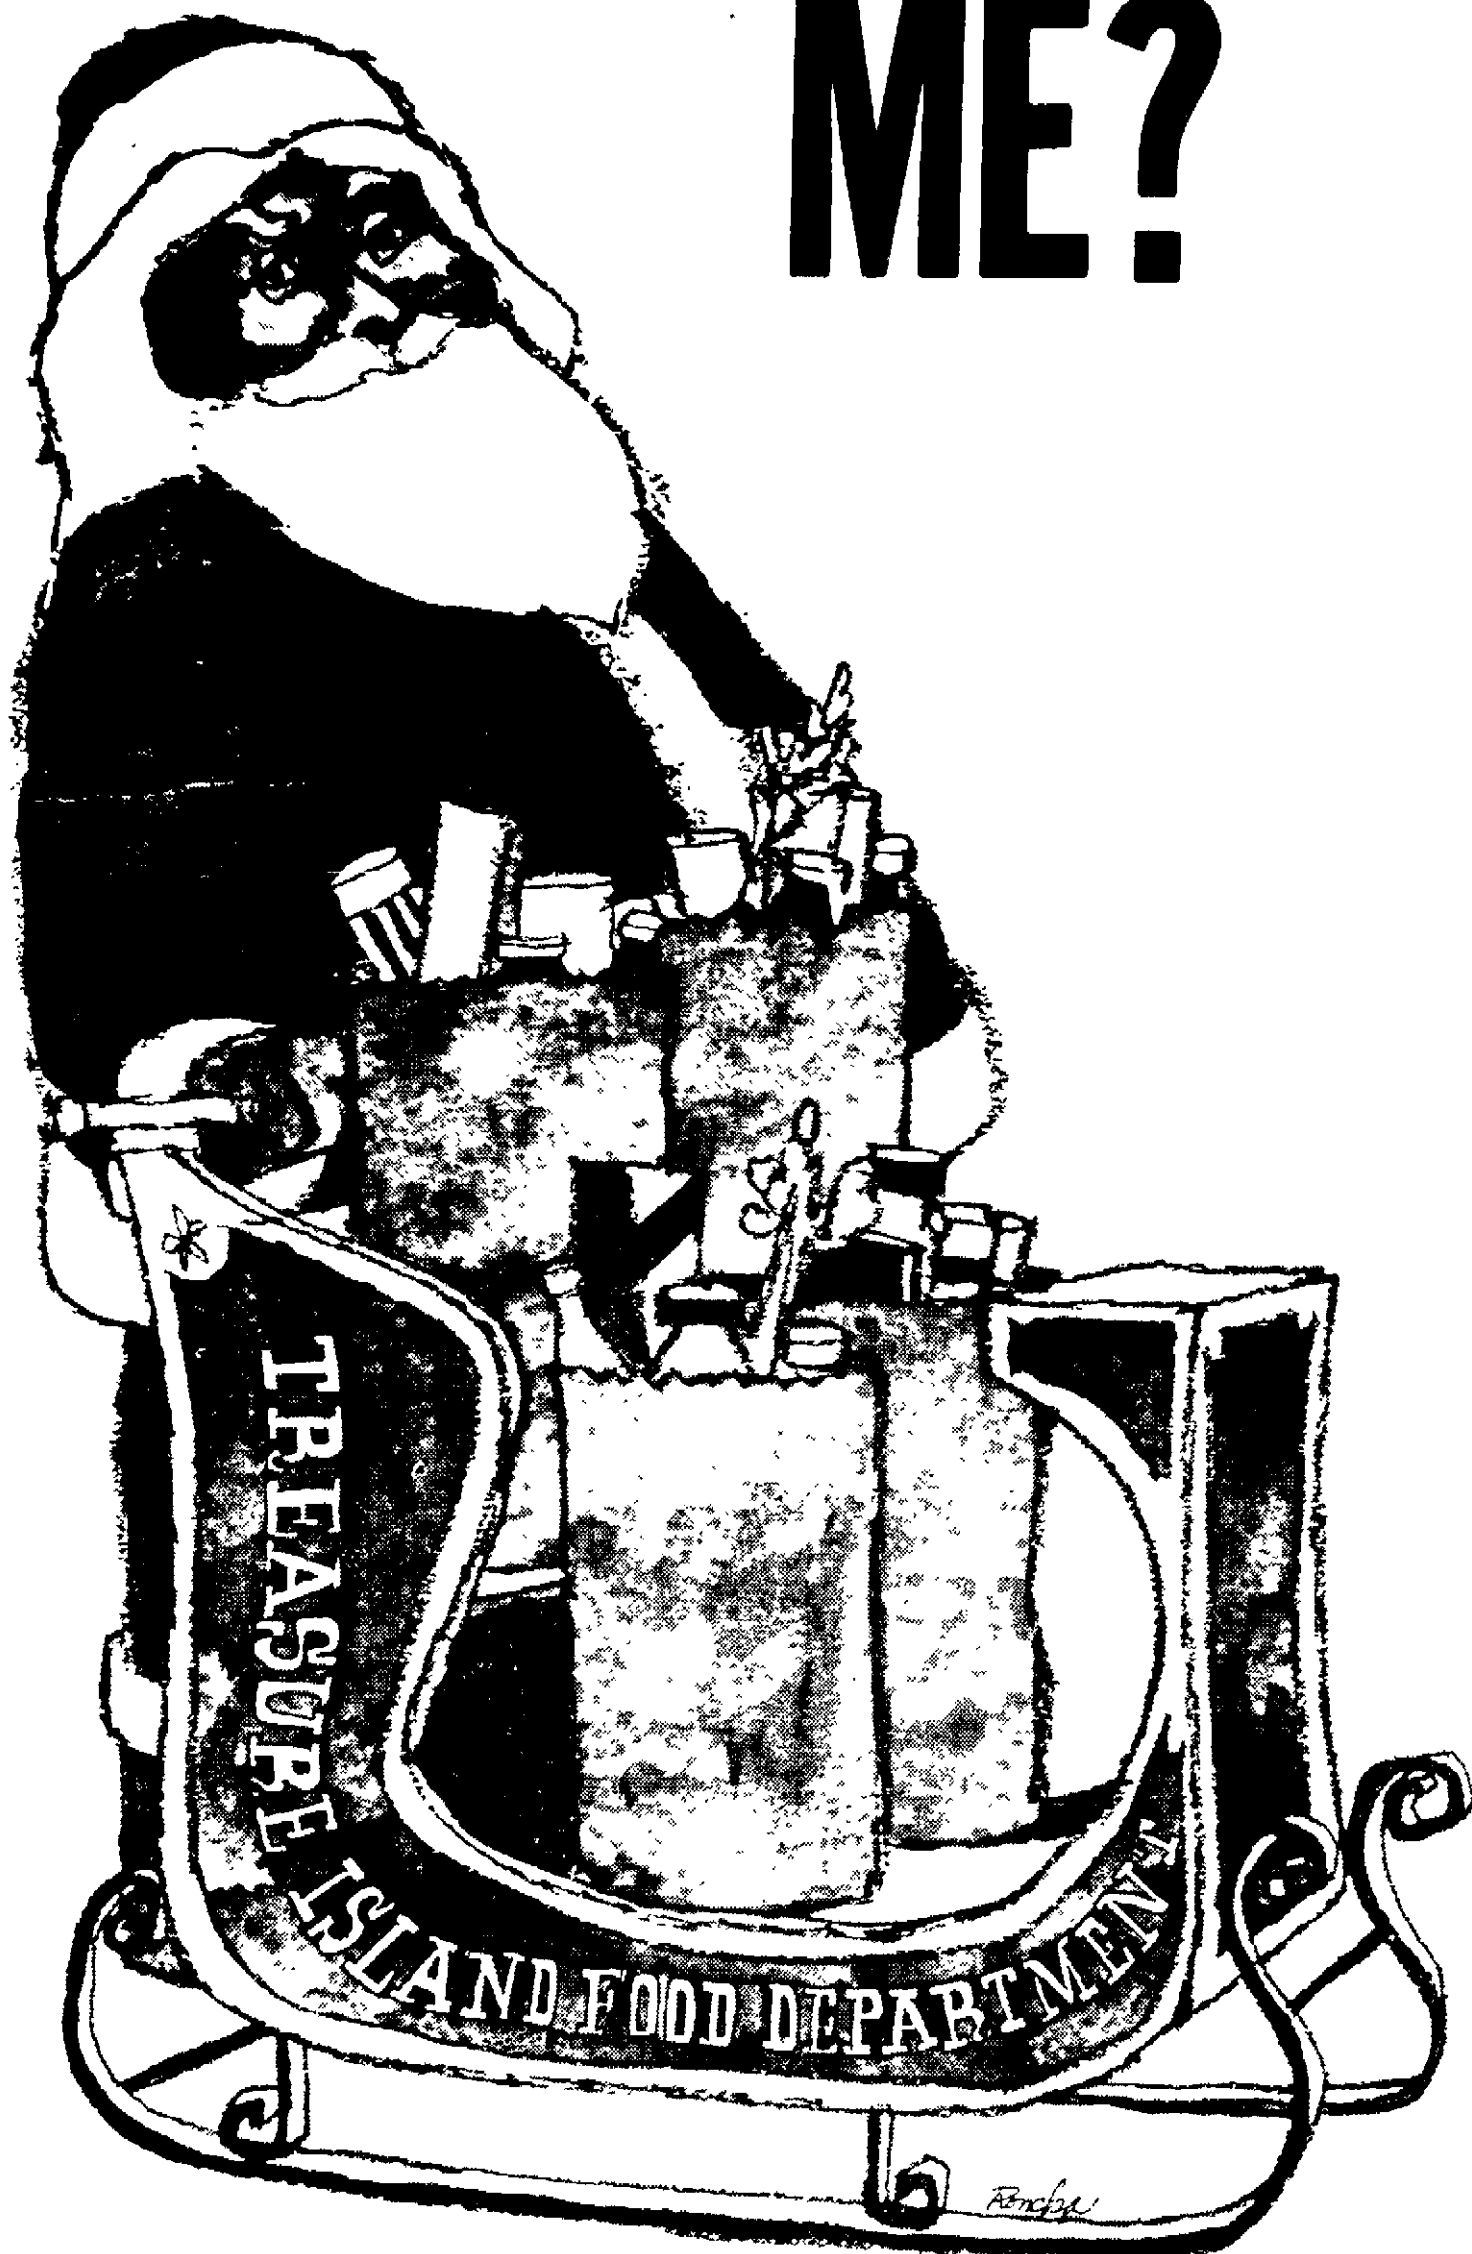

Uneasiness about the future of the pound, and perhaps even of the dollar, is blamed for the recent rise in the price of gold.

It had been selling on the London free market at around $35.08 an ounce (roughly the U.S. official price). Now it has climbed close to $35.13 cents an ounce, the highest point since the 1962 Cuban crisis. A premium price for gold can carry the threat of another drain on the U.S. reserves, which so far this year has all but halted.

Close ties of the dollar and the pound as the world's standards of foreign exchange keep Britain's troubles close to American financial markets. And some of the uncertainty that still persists is credited with causing at least part of the weakness that has plagued the American stock markets through most of December.

Most financial authorities express confidence that Britain will work out of this crisis as it has out of previous ones since World War II. It's how she does it, and how long it takes, that Americans are watching.

Girl Injured When Car Skids Into Fire Truck

Auto Snapped Off Traffic Light Post At College and Drew

A car slid out of control, snapped off a traffic light pole, then slammed into the side of an Appleton Fire Department ladder truck hurrying to a fire call shortly after 7:30 a.m. today. The accident occurred on E. College Avenue at Drew Street.

Police said a passenger in the car, Miss Beverly Guyette, 16, 1431½ E. Wisconsin Ave., received cuts and was taken to Appleton Memorial Hospital by a fire department rescue wagon. She was treated and released.

Driver of the car, Miss Guyette's brother, Tom, 17, fled from the scene on foot and was found by police in a telephone booth on E. Wisconsin Avenue. He was taken to the police station where he was questioned about the accident and released.

Police said Guyette's car was heading west on E. College Avenue and the fire truck was turning off Drew Street onto E. College Avenue when the accident occurred.

Guyette told police he heard the siren and pulled his car to the right, but the car swerved out of control, jumped a curb, struck the aerial light snapping it off, then slammed into the fire truck. None of the six firemen on the engine reported injuries.

Firemen had been called to the Foremost Dairies, 935 E. John St., when the sprinkler system there had been activated by steam in the pipes. There was no fire. A reserve engine answered the call shortly after the hook and ladder truck was dispatched.

A third passenger in the Guyette car, Kevin Barker, 16, 1518 N. Laue St., was uninjured. Guyette told police he was taking Barker and his sister to school.

Two persons were injured Sunday when the car they were driving slid into an Outagamie County highway grader on U.S. 10 in Greenville.

Weyauvega Couple
Taken by Larry's Ambulance Service to Appleton Memorial Hospital were Mr. and Mrs. William March, Weyauvega. Mrs. March told police she was driving west on 10 when she applied her brakes, skidded across the road and struck the grader being operated by Rock J. Moder, 59, 603 S. Nash St., Hortonville. Moder was not injured. The accident occurred at 9:30 a.m.

Two persons were injured in a one-car crash on W. Foster Street about 12:30 a.m. today when the car in which they were riding, skidded out of control and struck a tree at two homes.

Ronald Lom, 23, 817 W. Harris St., the driver, received cuts to his face and mouth and possible fractures. His passenger, Richard G. Diodrick, 18, 724 W. Third St., had face cuts and head bruises. They were taken to St. Elizabeth Hospital by Larry's Ambulance Service.

Appleton police said the car was headed east on Foster, went over the curbing, hit a tree, then struck a porch at 144 W. Foster St., continued on and slammed into the side of the house at 155 W. Foster St.

Promotes American System

WSU-O Professor Is Man With Idea, Mission

OSHKOSH—Dr. Gian Sud is a young man with an idea and a mission in pursuit of his idea, he spends freely of his resources, time and courage.

Recently, in this pursuit, the Wisconsin State University-Oshkosh professor flew to New York, where he visited Walter Cronkite of CBS-TV, Fitzgerald Smith of NBC Radio's "Monitor" program and officials of the Ford Foundation.

Sud's idea is essentially simple in context, but far-reaching in its implications. What he envisions is an organization to promote among foreign students in the United States, who are interested in pursuing political careers, an understanding of and dedication to the American free enterprise system.

'Dedication' Important
That word "Dedication" is important to Sud. He foresees nationals returning to their countries—especially to the developing nations—prepared to sell the free enterprise system.

Appleton Police Work
Christmas to be Bright For Destitute Family

A destitute family of nine children, visited last Christmas by members of the Appleton Police Department bearing food, clothing and gifts, has not been forgotten this year.

Lt. Robert Lathrop of the identification bureau and Juvenile Officer David Young, said today the department has received the cooperation of the Catholic Apostolate, several department stores and scout groups in preparing food, gifts and other items for a destitute family which the department aided last year.

Capt. Donald Paulie said last year the department was asked by a relative of the family to make Christmas brighter for the family which was on welfare aid and was not planning on having Christmas this year.

Almost in Tears
Paulie said the relative came to the station "almost in tears" to ask assistance. She said the nine children in the home had no winter clothing and were not expecting toys at Christmas.

Police, the following morning, with assistance from the Apostolate, collected food and clothing, other gifts and took them to the family for its Christmas.

Want Toys
Lathrop said the family was contacted this year and asked if assistance was needed. Lathrop said that although the family, which lives outside the city limits, was without food and clothing again this year, the children asked that they be given toys for their Christmas this year.

Lathrop said Young has been busy taking in toys and has accumulated a large bag of toys from department stores and other merchants. Some of the toys have been repaired by police in their off-duty time.

Efforts are being made to have the family clothed and fed at Christmas also, Lathrop said. He said the Apostolate has agreed to provide food.

High Offer May Receive Bid Award

Lower Operating Costs Factor in Solids Disposal Unit

NEENAH-MENASHA — The Neenah-Menasha Sewerage Commission may be able to award a contract to other than the lowest base bidder for a portion of the work on the secondary treatment plant, Neenah City Atty Charles Schaller conceded today.

Schaller had questioned the commission's engineer's recommendation of accepting the bid of Dorr-Oliver, Inc., of $389,563 for a solids disposal system at the new secondary treatment plant. Bartlett Snow-Pacific Inc. had the low base bid of $339,000.

The engineer had recommended the high bid on the basis of lower operating cost which he felt would save the two cities about $74,000 over a 20 year period.

Schaller had questioned the recommendation on the basis of the public bid statute which requires the contract to go to the lowest responsible bidder. The Neenah city attorney said the operating cost could be considered if it was properly set up.

Contracts for the plant, which total about $2,114,000, will be let by the commission before Dec. 31.

Tin Box Found To Contain 65 Dynamite Caps

A small tin box hidden above a door frame in an Appleton basement was discovered by its finder to contain 65 dynamite caps.

Robert Conperine, 744 W. Prospect Ave., told police he was cleaning the door frame and came up with the small tin box. When he discovered its contents, he turned the box and caps over to police.

Police Sunday attempted to trace former occupants of the home to determine ownership, but failed to find any parties who claimed the caps. Conperine said he has lived in the home only a short time.

The caps were taken to the sewage treatment plant and buried under several tons of sludge. Police said the caps had been hidden on the door frame "a very long time."

Downtown Kiwanis to Hear Christmas Topic

The Bell Ringer Choir of First Congregational Church will play youth led Lawrence's individual Christmas selections Tuesday at the Breakfast Optimist meeting.

The Xavier Library Club Thursday sang carols at Peabody Manor. Linda Doro, club president, was in charge.

Christmas music has been played in the junior and senior cooking classes of Mrs. Valery Ahlgren at Xavier as students baked a wide variety of Christmas cookies. A box of these cookies will be given to each member of the Xavier faculty on the day before the start of Christmas vacation.

The Xavier Art Club has made its contribution to the Christmas mood by erecting a Nativity scene on the school roof. Paul Dresang and Steve Calmes were in charge of this project.

The scene, built and first set up last year by the Art Club, stands over eight feet tall and is hand painted.

Midwest Properties Ask for Sewers for Residential Area

Another request has been received by the city of Appleton in common for water service to an area outside the city limits.

The request came from Midwest Properties Inc., Appleton, for the area north of Midway Road and west of U.S. 10, which the firm plans to develop for residential use.

Earlier in the year, Our Redeemer Lutheran Church made a request for service to its building on Midway Road. The city denied the request, and church officials went to the Public Service Commission (PSC).

Asks For Review

The PSC ordered the city to provide water, and the city refused, and asked a review. The review, too, was denied, and the city took the matter to court where it remains.

In the petition to the city, G. Allen Bubolz, president of Midwest Properties said cost of installation of sewer mains to tie into the city's lines would be absorbed by the firm.

"In view of the fact that the city of Appleton has water mains of ample size adjacent to the south and east limits of the subdivision and will not be put to any expense with regard to the installation of either the water mains or the necessary connections, and future residents of the area would be billed for their share of the monthly water service charges, window "popped" out and we ask that the city of Appleton give favorable consideration to and bleeding.

Police took Mr. and Mrs. John P. Lyons, 1925 N. Locust St., required for the Oak Ridge Gardens subdivision." Bubolz said.

Service Problems

"As you are aware," he said, "the merging of city boundaries creates public facility and service problems which the community must face."

Orders Are Sent From Washington

Construction of a proposed Fox Cities National Guard armory, scheduled to start in 1965, will be delayed indefinitely, according to Adjutant Gen. Ralph J. Olson.

Olson, in a letter to Appleton Mayor Clarence Mitchell, said his office has received orders from the National Guard Bureau in Washington directing a temporary curtailment of all National Guard construction projects.

The armory, to replace aged buildings in Appleton and Neenah, was to have been built on land in the Appleton industrial park donated by the city.

'Unable to Proceed'
"We will be unable to proceed with this project until this temporary curtailment is lifted," Olson said.

The adjutant said the curtailment was temporary, pending the development of the realignment and reorganization plans for all National Guard and Army Reserve units.

Merging of the Guard and the Reserve, along with substantial cuts in personnel, was recommended recently by Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara.

Olson said the National Guard Bureau was unable to say when the curtailment would be lifted, but said it could be from two weeks to several months.

Guard officials said during the period of the curtailment, the entire program and construction requirements for all reserve components would be evaluated.

Firemen Battle Morning Blaze on
W. Seventh St.

KAUKAUNA — Firemen battled to control a fire at the Glen Meyerhofer home, 615 W. Seventh St., which broke out about 11:10 a.m. today.

The entire upstairs of the two-story dwelling appeared to be smoldering, and firemen battled the blaze from two sides of the home.

The fire was noticed by James Kramer, a truck driver, as he drove past the home. He ran to the door and met Mrs. Meyerhofer who said she had just smelled smoke, and heard what she thought was a minor explosion.

Kramer assisted her in removing four children to neighbors, who notified firemen.

The fire at first appeared to be limited to a back bedroom, but at noon today had spread throughout the attic and upper portion of the home.

Two fire trucks were on hand, and off-duty firemen were summoned. Extensive smoke and fire damage was certain, officials said.

Cause of the blaze has not been determined.

Shortly before trucks were called to the Thomas Roberts home, 127 Brothers St., where Mrs. Roberts thought she smelled smoke. Firemen were unable to find any fire.

Use of Headlights for Holiday Day Driving Urged in State

Special to The Post-Crescent

Donald F. Taylor, president of the Wisconsin State Chamber of Commerce, has urged all holiday drivers to use "headlights in daylight on Wisconsin's highways."

He proposed the slogan "Light Up and Live" for stressing the use of headlights-daylight safety tip.

Taylor said recent tests by the University of Indiana suggested that automobiles are not visible enough to oncoming drivers even in bright sunlight. This is particularly true during the gray overcast days of winter, he added.

The visibility of a car in daylight varies considerably with its surroundings, color, weather conditions and the glare facing a driver in his own car. Taylor stated These can decrease the visibility of a vehicle unless something highly illuminating is added to the vehicle.

It is possible that auxiliary running lights may be required to increase visibility in daylight driving on highways, Taylor reported.

Until further tests have been made, he urged the use of headlights at low beam. According to the State Highway Patrol, there is no drain on the battery through such daylight use.

ald Smith committed a five-minute national broadcast to Sud's idea. The Ford Foundation agreed to give his proposal serious consideration.

Prominent Contacts
These three sources join a long list of prominent contacts who show interest in the proposal. Among those giving an audience to the idea have been former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, the late President John F. Kennedy, Sen. Barry Goldwater, Sen. Gaylord Nelson, Sen. Eugene McCarthy, Sen. Thurston Morton, Rep. Henry Schadeberg, Rep. John Byrnes, Rep. Robert Nelson and Rep. William Broomfield, plus many educators and other officials.

Sud, following graduation with a PH D from the University of Wisconsin the past year, joined the science staff at Wisconsin State University.

He is a native of India, where he earned BS and MS degrees at Panjab University. From his observations in developing nations and his experience in the United States, Sud has gained the firm conviction that the free enterprise system is a superior one, and must be clearly understood, so that it can be adapted to the emerging nations by the new leaders of these nations.

Comprehensive Program
To accomplish this purpose requires more than a hit-and-miss presentation to foreign students, Sud believes. What is needed, he says, is a comprehensive program which explores all phases of the American system.

Many of those who would complete the program, returning to their own countries, would have an effective voice in adopting the free enterprise system at home and not be subject to the suspicions attached to "outsiders" who try to promote a particular philosophy.

Sud admits that his idea has a long way to go before it can begin to function.

An observer, watching the professor's enthusiasm, dedication and courage, comes away with the feeling that—somehow—it will.

Pastor's Conservation Dream Being Fulfilled

marsh and provide an eight-foot roadway on the top. The overflow will be 23 feet wide.

Earth from the 30-by-six-foot ditch will be used to form the dike. The area, when completed, can be drained at times prescribed by the conservation department. Technical advisors will be John Nimlos and Albert Holly of Waupaca, veteran Waupaca County soil conservationists. Drainage intended to induce ducks and geese to nest in the area and the growth of aquatic weeds which provide food for muskrats.

Interest in the project has been shown by state conservation officials including Oscar Steinke, head of the state's recreation land acquisition program, and Jerry Reickoff, area game manager.

Pastor Lange said some of the work has already been accomplished by the beavers which have built six dams in the region. The pastor has long been associated with conservation, particularly with the Wolf River Basin Regional Planning Commission. He operates a 40-acre trout pound facility which is part of the 500-acre tract.

Muskrat, Beaver
During the past 20 years, five miles of level ditching has been done. It accounts for the increasing population of fur-bearing animals such as muskrat and beavers.

This year, another 3,000 trees of assorted species will be planted under the direction of forester Lloyd La Cosse of Waupaca. Previously, 13,000 trees were planted and timber stand improvement work was conducted by former Forester Dale Tubbs now living in Alaska.

The trout venture was initiated about five years ago. The area has always been a good pantry for animals after rain-falls, but the water drained off in the past, said Pastor Lange. The new program will attempt to maintain a permanent level for this area and the entire 800 acres concerned.

Flowage Rights
Four area farmers have granted flowage rights to Pastor Lange including Norman Maass of Seymour. Combined with his acreage, the program will affect more than 300 additional acres. The state requires flowage permission for at least 65 acres. Conservation authorities have indicated it could be a fine northern pike spawning area. Later, wild rice will be planted to attract ducks. The natural habitat of willows has been described as conducive, said starts in the Manawa-Symco area about five to seven miles away. For years it was owned by farmers who gained little benefit from it other than in drought years when they were able to cut the grass for cattle.

Pastor Lange. The swamp

The Lutheran cleric said he hoped to add a pheasant hunting reserve in the future to coincide with his trout fishing ponds. It will give the "general taxpayer a place to relax and be recreated," he said.

"Today is a big letter day in my hopes and ambitions. For over 20 years we have watched the water level drop with the agriculture areas. It is high time," said Pastor Lange, "that we evaluate this resource. The average person requires 17 gallons a day for his living."

"It is not sufficient to dump this overflow into the Mississippi River and the Gulf of Mexico. Even in the Alaska area they are considering how to retain the water table for the Great Lakes. We must be good stewards and be concerned over retaining the water table for industrial growth," the pastor said.

The PENNSYLVANIA EVENING POST.

Vol. II.] SATURDAY, JULY 6, 1776. [Num. 228.

In CONGRESS, July 4, 1776.
A Declaration by the Representatives of the United States of America, in General Congress assembled.

WHEN, in the course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume, among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the laws of nature and of nature's God intitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident, That all men are created equal; that they are endowed, by their Creator, with certain unalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness. That to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed; that whenever any form of government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the right of the people to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new government, laying its foundation on such principles, and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their safety and happiness. Prudence, indeed, will dictate that governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly all experience hath shewn, that mankind are more disposed to suffer, while evils are sufferable, than to right themselves by abolishing the forms to which they are accustomed. But when a long train of abuses and usurpations, pursuing invariably the same object, evinces a design to reduce them under absolute despotism, it is their right, it is their duty, to throw off such government, and to provide new guards for their future security. Such has been the patient sufferance of these colonies, and such is now the necessity which constrains them to alter their former systems of government. The history of the present King of Great Britain is a history of repeated injuries and usurpations, all having in direct object the establishment of an absolute tyranny over these states. To prove this, let facts be submitted to a candid world.

He has refused his assent to laws, the most wholesome and necessary for the public good.

He has forbidden his Governors to pass laws of immediate and pressing importance, unless suspended in their operation till his assent should be obtained; and, when so suspended, he has utterly neglected to attend to them.

He has refused to pass other laws for the accommodation of large districts of people, unless those people would relinquish the right of representation in the legislature, a right inalienable to them, and formidable to tyrants only.

He has called together legislative bodies at places unusual, uncomfortable, and distant from the depository of their public records, for the sole purpose of fatiguing them into compliance with his measures.

He has dissolved Representative Houses repeatedly, for opposing with manly firmness his invasions on the rights of the people.

He has refused for a long time, after such dissolutions, to cause others to be elected; whereby the legislative powers, incapable of annihilation, have returned to the people at large for their exercise; the state remaining in the meantime exposed to all the dangers of invasion from without, and convulsions within.

He has endeavoured to prevent the population of these states; for that purpose obstructing the laws for naturalization of foreigners; refusing to pass others to encourage their migrations hither, and raising the conditions of new appropriations of lands.

He has obstructed the administration of justice, by refusing his assent to laws for establishing judiciary powers.

He has made Judges dependant on his will alone, for the tenure of their offices, and the amount and payment of their salaries.

He has erected a multitude of new offices, and sent hither swarms of officers to harass our people, and eat out their substance.

He has kept among us, in times of peace, standing armies, without the consent of our legislatures.

He has affected to render the military independant of and superior to the civil power.

He has combined with others to subject us to a jurisdiction foreign to our constitution, and unacknowledged by our laws; giving his assent to their acts of pretended legislation:

For quartering large bodies of armed troops among us:

For protecting them, by a mock trial, from punishment for any murders which they should commit on the inhabitants of these states:

For cutting off our trade with all parts of the world:

For imposing taxes on us without our consent:

For depriving us, in many cases, of the benefits of trial by jury:

For transporting us beyond seas to be tried for pretended offences:

For abolishing the free system of English laws in a neighbouring province, establishing therein an arbitrary government, and enlarging its boundaries, so as to render it at once an example and fit instrument for introducing the same absolute rule into these colonies:

For taking away our charters, abolishing our most valuable laws, and altering fundamentally the forms of our governments:

For suspending our own legislatures, and declaring themselves invested with power to legislate for us in all cases whatsoever.

He has abdicated government here, by declaring us out of his protection and waging war against us.

He has plundered our seas, ravaged our coasts, burnt our towns, and destroyed the lives of our people.

He is, at this time, transporting large armies of foreign mercenaries to complete the works of death, desolation, and tyranny, already begun with circumstances of cruelty and perfidy scarcely paralleled in the most barbarous ages, and totally unworthy the head of a civilized nation.

He has constrained our fellow citizens taken captive on the high seas to bear arms against their country, to become the executioners of their friends and brethren, or to fall themselves by their hands.

He has excited domestic insurrections amongst us, and has endeavoured to bring on the inhabitants of our frontiers the merciless Indian Savages, whose known rule of warfare is an undistinguished destruction of all ages, sexes and conditions.

In every stage of these oppressions we have petitioned for redress in the most humble terms: Our repeated petitions have been answered only by repeated injury. A Prince, whose character is thus marked by every act which may define a tyrant, is unfit to be the ruler of a free people.

Nor have we been wanting in attentions to our British brethren. We have warned them from time to time of attempts by their legislature to extend an unwarrantable jurisdiction over us. We have reminded them of the circumstances of our emigration and settlement here. We have appealed to their native justice and magnanimity, and we have conjured them by the ties of our common kindred to disavow these usurpations, which would inevitably interrupt our connections and correspondence. They too have been deaf to the voice of justice and of consanguinity. We must, therefore, acquiesce in the necessity, which denounces our separation, and hold them, as we hold the rest of mankind, enemies in war, in peace, friends.

We, therefore, the Representatives of the UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, in GENERAL CONGRESS assembled, appealing to the Supreme Judge of the world for the rectitude of our intentions, do, in the name, and by authority of the good people of these colonies, solemnly publish and declare, that these United Colonies are, and of right ought to be, FREE AND INDEPENDENT STATES; that they are absolved from all allegiance to the British Crown, and that all political connexion between them and the state of Great-Britain is and ought to be totally dissolved; and that, as FREE AND INDEPENDENT STATES, they have full power to levy war, conclude peace, contract alliances, establish commerce, and to do all other acts and things which INDEPENDENT STATES may of right do. And for the support of this declaration, with a firm reliance on the protection of Divine Providence, we mutually pledge to each other our lives, our fortunes, and our sacred honor.

Signed by ORDER and in BEHALF of CONGRESS,
JOHN HANCOCK, President.
Attest,

Answer: 10 advertisers

Did you think the Declaration of Independence was carried around on parchment scrolls and read in town squares by little old men wearing funny hats, white pony tails and ringing little bells?

Not so. The historic news was spread by papers like The Pennsylvania Evening Post (above). And these papers were supported by advertisers like Hyns Taylor, upholsterer, and David Pancoast, realtor (also above).

The same holds true today.

Without advertisers, the paper you're reading right now might cost one dollar or more.

(At those prices some people would much rather wait for the little old man ringing the little bell.)

What you paid for this newspaper today just about covers the cost of the paper it's printed on.

Everything else—the entire cost of world-wide and local news gathering, pictures, features, the actual engravings, typesetting and printing—has to be borne by local and national advertising.

It's the same with magazines, radio and television.

Perhaps we wouldn't be in the dark ages without advertising, but we'd certainly be in the dark.

Of course there's always the possibility that the government would subsidize newspapers, magazines, radio and television.

But in that case, we could hardly expect members of the government to use these media to publicize their own shortcomings or mistakes.

It is apparent, then, that advertising is intimately connected with freedom of speech and freedom of the press.

Because there are advertisers who want to tell you the difference between products, there are newspapers (and radio and television) to tell you the difference between political candidates.

There are some countries, you know, where they don't have a choice between political candidates. Or products.

Why Teacher Salaries Continue to Increase

Governor-Elect Warren Knowles reflected the opinion of a lot of Wisconsin taxpayers when he commented doubtfully upon the policy which gives almost automatic wage increases to teachers in the state's various universities. Why, indeed, should teachers, almost alone in our society, continue to receive across the board increases which often have little to do with their worth and which are far higher, on a percentage basis, than generally given in industry and business?

The answer is two-fold: It represents past practices that were poor and the simple free enterprise policy of supply and demand.

Teachers at all levels of education received relatively low salaries at the end of World War II. All around the country, including Wisconsin, efforts were made by governing boards to raise salaries to get them in line with industries and professions which were suddenly demanding men and women of education. In Wisconsin universities and state colleges, as well as in public elementary and secondary schools, the percentages of increase were considerable. In addition, fringe benefits were boosted.

A result in some areas of education has been to create a good supply of teachers for the market. But there still are gaps in mathematics, home economics and foreign languages in high schools and at the post high school level there is and will continue to be a shortage. The competition for instructors and professors of experience and merit as well as merely of renown has become a major problem of almost every college and university in the country. Wisconsin is no exception.

The general public and its elected officials may complain all they want about the high cost of salaries and fringe benefits. The hard fact is that if the state wants capable teachers, it must pay the price. In general, the salaries offered at the instructor's level compare favorably with institutions of comparable reputation in neighboring states. The salaries of assistant and full professors rank Wisconsin lower. The legislature has been reluctant to raise these salaries and this has served to compound the problem. The Coordinating Committee for Higher Education has consistently emphasized the need for comparable salaries at the higher levels of teaching. It also has successfully over the last decade raised salaries in the former state colleges almost to a par with those in the universities.

With every part of the country building increased educational facilities to try to take care of the baby boom now in the late high school and early college age — and not falling off for at least a decade — there is bound to be increased competition rather than less for the college teacher. The Ph. D. takes many years to earn and is, sometimes unfortunately, used as a standard. Some universities and colleges also have applied the artificial demand of "publish or perish" which merely rates publication in a professor's field of discipline as important. Teaching loads have sometimes been cut to ridiculous levels in order to lure a famous name. These are practices we wish could be changed.

But the fact that some school boards are tossing out the annual across the board raises in lower schools reflects the fact that the supply of teachers at that level is higher. It is not yet true at the college level and it doesn't appear to be likely for years to come.

The Lure of War

The recollections last week, in newspapers, magazines and on television, of the Battle of the Bulge just 20 years ago has made fascinating reading and viewing, especially for those adults who remember the event in what turned out to be the last full year of World War II.

In these days of peace and cooperation with a far different government in West Germany than Hitler's regime, it has been possible to secure reaction from the generals in charge of the last gasp drive back into France and Belgium.

The mighty Nazi machine, which was going to last a thousand years, according to Hitler, still was a frightening thing. German films and statements, as well as those of the American and British, have been combined to present the story. The same sort of thing with conclusions after 20 years of reflection has been done in cooperation with the Japanese about Pearl Harbor and other struggles in the Pacific theater of war.

But one result has been to make the dreadful business of war rather like an energetic game of chess or perhaps the big game of professional sports teams. The 77,000 casualties the Americans suffered at the Battle of the Bulge are just statistics. Even the massacre at Malmedy loses something of its horror in retrospect. Over the centuries, war has been regarded as the most fascinating game of all. It often has been lauded as a maker of men from boys, a machine for bringing out qualities of courage and honor and self-sacrifice. But all too often we forget that it also means not only the dreadful business of trying to kill and regarding that killing as a standard of excellence, but the point of view that the end of winning justifies any means at all. The recent Vietnamese episode in which a small boy unwittingly betrayed his Viet Cong father for an American candy bar is an example of the high costs of war in more than life alone.

There are worse things than war — perhaps even that of nuclear war — and surrender to a tyrant without putting up a fight is one of them. But as we read the accounts of battles and campaigns and the tremendous human effort necessary for victory we should also remember the warning of Gen. Robert E. Lee that it is fortunate war is so horrible, else men would be forever playing the fascinating game.

Modern Vigilantes

In at least two large residential apartments in New York City, the tenants have organized groups of volunteers to provide protection in the night. The number of muggings, assaults and robberies in such apartments without doormen or special guards has continued to increase. And there have been several fatal attacks.

New York police reportedly are not happy about these vigilante groups, fearing more violence from untrained men attempting to fill the role of the police. Ordinarily such concern would be warranted. Trigger-happy citizens are seldom the answer to anything.

But the very real dangers in major cities and the inability so far of the police forces to cope with them mean that the art of self defense has become more necessary. A young woman who repelled an attacker with a switchblade knife which she carried illegally according to a city ordinance, has been acquitted since obviously the weapon probably saved her life. Big increases in the number of patrolmen on the streets in some neighborhoods would help solve the problem. So would more adequate lighting, particularly in alleys and yards, automatic locks on apartments and entrances, intercommunication systems, manned elevators and alert doormen. But these are seldom required by law. They are expensive either to the taxpayers or apartment building owners. Many tenants have conceded that such efforts at protection would probably warrant rent increases.

The organizations at present have volunteers posted at entrances during the evening hours and two or three men patrol specific areas. They are officially armed only with night sticks but they also carry walkie-talkies. It would appear that sincere efforts are being made to make sure that the innocent are not harmed whether they are apartment dwellers or unwary visitors.

Whatever society's responsibility for the motives of rapists, muggers, thieves and sadists, it can not stand idly by and not try to prevent crimes of violence. While there should be extensive efforts toward rehabilitation of criminals and even more perhaps toward the prevention of the development of such people, the only real method of temporary protection is to establish that attacks are almost certain to be unsuccessful.

Looking Backward

Rebels Routed From Columbia

100 YEARS AGO
Quoted from the Appleton Motor for Dec. 29, 1864.

Nashville, Tenn., Dec. 23—The latest accounts from the front locate Gen. Thomas' headquarters at Rutherford Hill yesterday morning, eight miles this side of Columbia.

Since that time our forces have crossed Duck River, and have moved to a point south of Columbia. Our Cavalry force has crossed Hunter's Ford below Columbia, dashed into town, the enemy meanwhile retreating without a shot. We captured about 50 stragglers.

The rebel force was at last accounts at Pulaski yesterday morning, but are probably some distance south of there today. They are closely followed by our Cavalry. No particular damage has been done to the town of Columbia by the passing through of the two armies.

At least one-third of Hood's army is without equipment or arms, everything which impedes their flight having been thrown away. Rebel deserters and prisoners report the only effectual corps of Hood's army to be S. D. Lee's.

Forrest effected a junction with Hood at Columbia and Tuesday evening last.

The operetta "Scrooge's Christmas" was presented in Clintonville by pupils in the grades of the public school. Emil Stubenvoll played the character of Ebenezer Scrooge; Frank Miller was Bob Cratchit; Tommy Korb portrayed Tiny Tim, and others in the cast were Gerald Pelishek, Shirley Haskins, Donald Meyer, Robert Spiegel, James Knister, Robert Polzin, Laverne Haskins, Mary Lou Maul, Leon Steenbock, Ganet Geissel, David

I am writing this open letter, not only as the Director of Finance of the City of Appleton, but also as an Appleton taxpayer. Oftentimes well-meaning but over zealous people forget that city employees and officials do not cease to be taxpayers and citizens simply because they accept public employment. You can be sure that there is no one associated with the Appleton Taxpayers Association or Appleton City Hall who is more interested in or dedicated to the reduction of the Appleton tax rate than I am.

On December 14, 1964, Mr. G. K. Willecke, president of your association, submitted a memo to the Mayor and Common Council (which became a public pronouncement) expressing your association's views relative to the council's informal action in adopting a fact finders recommendations for a 3 per cent salary increase for City of Appleton employees. Because this pronouncement, as well as the presentation which Mr. Willecke made on your association's behalf during the public hearing on the 1965 budget, contain certain inaccurate statements and implications I feel that they must be answered and clarified.

In his letter of December 14th, Mr. Willecke states that the Appleton Taxpayers Association objects in principle to the following statement attributable to me that "funds are available for such a raise." If your association had been represented at the informal council meeting on December 9, 1964 you would have known that this reference had nothing whatsoever to do with the question of whether a raise should or should not be granted. The statement which I actually made was this: "Ample funds are available to meet this nominal increased cost..." The cost referred to was $2200.00 which represented the difference between applying the raise, IF one be granted, on the basis of a straight seven cents per hour to all employees as opposed to a flat 3 per cent increase for all employees. It is unfortunate your association did not seek out the actual facts before issuing this public statement.

I would also like to clarify a point which Mr. Willecke, on your association's behalf, made before the Common Council on November 18, 1964 at the time of the public hearing on the 1965 budget. Early in his presentation before the council, Mr. Willecke emphasized the extent of the efforts his association made in scrutinizing the proposed budget and conceded that they could not, in all honesty, see "where any appreciable further cuts can be made in the proposed budget that would exert any significant influence on the proposed tax rate." However, he then went on to make the following statements to which I must take exception:

"First of all, it is certainly not a 'happy budget'... Furthermore, we must also take into consideration the fact that the 1964 budget estimate anticipated that at the end of 1963 there would be available $370,116 as a general fund surplus. Actually, during 1964 the city transferred $252,805 of this money to aid in financing city operations for the year. To be sure, this was the purpose of the fund, but the fact remains that since no surplus is anticipated at the end of 1964, figuratively speaking, the city will be in the hole by $252,805 to start 1965" (end of quote)

I have been at a complete loss to understand what Mr. Willecke's purpose or intent was for making this statement. Certainly, the Appleton Taxpayers Association must realize that by appropriating the estimated surplus of $370,000 the city was able to reduce the tax levy a corresponding amount. This surplus was appropriated to meet budgeted expenditures and it should be perfectly obvious that you can not appropriate money to meet expenditures and expect to still have it at the end of the year after the expenditures have been paid.

You simply can not have your cake and eat it too! The Appleton taxpayers were the beneficiaries of this surplus appropriation when the tax rate for 1964 was held at $46.65, the same as it had been the previous year. Mr. Willecke's statement that the city will be in the hole by $252,000 to start the year 1965 is not only unfounded in fact, but is misleading and confusing to the Appleton citizenry. The only way the City of Appleton could start 1965 with a $252,000 in the hole would be to end the year 1964 with a $252,000 deficit. The 1965 budget is demonstrated proof that this is not even remotely possible.

In rebuttal to the foregoing statements by your association I would state that close budgeting is considered a virtue, not a vice as intimated by your association. That close budgeting is desirable can be established by quoting from the October 20, 1964 issue of "Tax News," a publication of the Public Expenditure Survey of Wisconsin. I might point out that your association was kind enough to provide us with this issue in November before the public hearing on the 1965 budget. I quote: "the tight budget and nonproperty tax revenue estimate that leave a paper-thin year end balance or even a small deficit that calls for a short-term operating loan are good policies for managing local government. The responsibility of the person elected to local office is to those taxpayers and voters who have placed him in office."

The skimpy cash balance is conducive to squeezing that last cent out of every dollar in the public treasury, getting a few more thousands of miles on the squad car, thinking twice about putting those ornamental lights on Main Street..."

The foregoing quotation makes it unnecessary to make any further comment on the use which the City of Appleton made of its anticipated 1963 surplus. Again, I must say that it was unfortunate that your association did not see fit to seek out all of the facts before making this misleading comment.

My purpose in writing this letter is not in any way intended to discredit the Appleton Taxpayers Association. I have great respect for its members and their many accomplishments. However, when your organization, which is dedicated to the principle of "economy in government" makes statements regarding the handling of financial matters we would hope such future public pronouncements will be objective, factual, and constructive.

In closing I would like to state that the 1965 City of Appleton Budget (in the words of your association) may be an "unhappy budget" but it is a realistic budget which reflects the well-considered needs of a growing, progressive and dynamic community of which I am most proud to be a part.

Democrats Losing No Time Organizing For 1966 Campaign

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

MADISON—As far as the Wisconsin Democratic Party command is concerned, the 1966 election campaign already has begun.

The scheduling of a fund-raising dinner here on Jan. 4 in connection with the inauguration of two Democratic state officers, the hurried organization of the Democratic majority in the State Assembly within a few days or even the two minor Republican state office holders in the state capital who survived the Democratic push this fall. Although many Reynolds supporters feel that his defeat was unfair, to the degree that Republicans exploited circumstances over which the retiring governor had no control, politics is a cruel mistress and the practical men of the party know that it will be difficult for Reynolds to bid for a renomination in 1966.

Thus there is already a kind of tacit assumption that there will be a new man at the top of the Democratic ticket in 1966. Lt. Gov. Patrick J. Lucey's election is spite of his close association with Reynolds was at once a testimonial to the basic appeal to the Democratic ticket, and an endorsement of his scarcely concealed ambition to rise in party affairs. Lucey will almost surely be a candidate for the gubernatorial nomination. But precisely because the party is feeling its oats, in a manner of speaking, he will probably have to fight for it. National Committeeman David Carley and possible others won't be disposed to let Lucey take the place by default, however impressive his victory this year.

CONGRESSMEN
One of the potentially significant triumphs of the Democrats that has not been sufficiently recognized in terms of party building against the future was the election of Democrats Lynn Stalbaum of Racine and John Race of Fond du Lac to congressional seats long held by Republicans.

An expert Republican politician of long Washington tenure once confided that if a congressman after his first election uses all of the resources at his command—including governmental subsidies little recognized by his constituents and thus relatively immune from criticism—only a surge of landslide dimensions can later remove him.

Race and Stalbaum have lost no time in signaling their intentions to secure themselves in their districts. To the extent that they fortify themselves, they will be strengthening the Democratic organization and ticket as a whole in their strategically important neighborhoods against 1966.

Wyngaard

after the election, the careful pre-seating political activity of the two new Democratic congressmen, and the steady flow of hostile Democratic press releases directed against Gov.-elect Warren P. Knowles before his actual installation show the calculated plans of the party to achieve full power in the state.

As Chairman Louis Hanson of the Democratic Party organization puts it, there is no longer any reason for even the most timid Democrat to doubt that this is a two-party state. In some respects the Democratic voting record this year shows that Wisconsin is probably a Democratic state already. The question is to nail down the gains of the party this year and to build upon them for a consolidation of strength two years hence.

REYNOLDS

The one important reverse of the Democrats this year was the defeat of Gov. John W. Reynolds for re-election.

The margin was a narrow one. Partisans console themselves with the recollection that the executive office has been a hard one to hold in Wisconsin for the last decade, and that in the country as a whole it has become notorious for the dangers it contains. The Republican state administration two years hence will probably find that it has more to worry about in retaining the favor of the voters than some of the Republican congressmen, for example, or many of the Republican members of the Legislature.

Restricted Donations Do Not Solve Problem

BY SYDNEY J. HARRIS

I was talking with some hospital officials not long ago, who are about to embark on a fund-raising drive among the general public. "Why do you show a deficit?" I asked. "Don't you have any reserve of funds from past contributions?"

"Yes, we do," one of them

said. "We have more than $6 million—but unfortunately, these are 'restricted' donations that have been earmarked for special purposes."

While the hospital has plenty of money for abstruse research or certain expensive forms of therapy, it lacks "bread-and-butter" money for maintaining the plant, for basic salaries, for the urgent every-day needs in running a large, complicated institution.

It seems to me that wealthy benefactors should be made more aware of the necessity for giving "unrestricted" donations to hospitals and schools. A string attached to a contribution may easily turn into a noose, strangling the very funds it was meant to liberate.

For instance, hundreds upon hundreds of college scholarships are going unused every year, because the specifications are so narrow and rigid that few applicants can be found who are able to fulfill them.

If a college badly needs a new library, it is useless (and most frustrating) to have a large sum earmarked for a new men's dormitory. And if a hospital needs equipment for an over-crowded charity clinic, it does little good to have a generous donation earmarked for X-ray equipment.

What are the factors that prompt such restricted contributions? One is a kind of gratitude. The wealthy benefactor, or someone in his family, may have been helped or cured by a particular treatment—and the donation goes to augment that form of treatment, whether or not the hospital requires augmentation.

A second reason is vanity. A benefactor sometimes wants his name to be associated with the vanguard of medical research, and leaves money for research and facilities in this "glamor" area of medicine. And a third reason is sentimentality—of which polio was a vast recipient in years past, even though its prevalence as a disease was not great.

Polio, incidentally, is an excellent example of the short-sightedness in earmarking donations. It is now no longer regarded as a major medical problem in hospitals—yet funds contributed for polio treatment may not be diverted to other and more crucial ailments, without at least a bitter court battle to set aside the specific terms of the donation. When we give, we should give wholly and unreservedly—letting the recipients themselves decide where our generosity can best be used.

Explorer 26 Sent Into Orbit to Get Data on Radiation

BY HOWARD BENEDICT

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The Explorer 26 satellite soared into orbit today to measure space radiation and the threat it poses to men and machinery flying deep into space.

The 101-pound windmill-shaped satellite shot aloft from Cape Kennedy at 4 a. m. aboard a towering Delta rocket which blazed brilliantly into the pre-dawn darkness.

The flight control center announced an hour later that tracking information indicated all three stages of the booster had fired with precision and drilled the payload into space.

Launch director Robert Gray said that "everything seems to be working just as expected."

Explorer 26 was aimed at a looping course intended to take it 15,800 miles away from earth before it swings back as close as 200 miles at the low point of its orbit.

7-Hour Circuit
Because of the eccentric path sought, the satellite was to make one global circuit every seven hours.

Officials said it would require several hours to determine accurate orbital figures.

The newest in a long line of Explorer satellites is to carry on work started by its predecessors in probing basic scientific mysteries of space.

The Explorer experiments known.

were designed to provide the most extensive information yet on how high energy radiation particles become trapped in the earth's magnetic field to form the Van Allen belt and the danger the belt poses to men and machinery flying future flights deep into space.

The satellite, whose four checkerboard-size solar cell panels give it the appearance of a windmill spinning through space, was aimed at the egg-shaped orbit so that it would cover the most intense radiation area of the Van Allen band and also the heaviest concentration of particles still left from a U.S. high altitude nuclear explosion. The nuclear blast, called Project Starfish, was conducted over the Pacific Ocean July 9, 1962.

Belt Disintegrating
The Van Allen region extends from about 600 miles to more than 40,000 miles above the earth. The heart of the Starfish belt is about 2,000 miles high.

The man-made belt is decaying rapidly and study of how it does so may provide scientists with clues to the behavior of the Van Allen particles. Data will be compared with that obtained by the Explorer 15 satellite which was launched two years ago specifically to probe the Starfish area.

The process by which electrons and protons are trapped in the earth's magnetic field is not known.

3 Youths Die As Passenger Train Hits Car

Wisconsin Traffic Fatalities for Year Increased to 1,033

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A car-train crash in suburban Wauwatosa Sunday took the lives of three young people as Wisconsin's record-breaking 1964 traffic toll pushed to 1,033 compared with 869 on this date a year ago.

Seven deaths recorded during the weekend included a freak accident in Milwaukee in which a man was crushed to death beneath his own car.

Killed in the collision of a car and a Milwaukee Road passenger train at a crossing in Wauwatosa Sunday were Joyce L. Culbertson, 16, Wauwatosa; James Junck, 17, New Berlin; and Richard Raesch, 17, New Berlin.

Auto Ripped Apart
The engineer of the castbound train, Joseph Limberg, 60, La Crosse, told police the train was traveling at 68 miles an hour when it struck the 1955 model car occupied by the young people.

President Busy With Budget on His Texas Ranch

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson gave budget-cutting top priority today as he settled down at the LBJ Ranch for the Christmas holidays. He planned to discuss spending with his budget director and three Cabinet officers.

Press secretary George E. Reedy described Johnson as determined to reduce spending requests "as prudently as he can, and as far as he can within the limits of efficiency and effectiveness."

Those on hand at the ranch included Budget Director Kenneth Gordon, Secretary of Commerce Luther H. Hodges, Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz, Secretary of the Interior Stewart L. Udall and Dr. Donald Horning, presidential assistant for science and technology.

Bonanno Fails to Appear at Office of Manhattan Attorney

NEW YORK (AP) — Missing Cosa Nostra kingpin Joseph (Joe Bonanno) Bonanno failed to show up at his attorney's Manhattan office today. Amid confusion, the attorney left to appear before a federal grand jury which was awaiting Bonanno.

Bonanno had disappeared two months ago in a purported kidnapping which took place while he was in the company of Maloney. Last Friday, Maloney confirmed published reports that Bonanno was alive and well and would appear at the attorney's office at 9 a. m. today.

Maloney said Bonanno, 59, would then go before the racketeering grand jury, which had summoned him to testify on the day he disappeared.

New Purge Casts Doubt On South Viet Nam Future

9 National Council Members, Over Score Others Arrested

BY MALCOLM W. BROWNE

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — The future of South Viet Nam's government and the war against the Viet Cong have been thrown into doubt by a weekend political purge by young Vietnamese generals.

The "Young Turks" dissolved the High National Council and arrested most of its nine members, plus more than 20 other leading politicians.

ment on the crisis — the country's sixth government upheaval in less than 14 months — but American displeasure was evident.

"This power play did not seem called for," said one U.S. official, "and basically we have to regard these generals as rebels against the duly constituted government."

Premier Tran Van Huong and Chief of State Phan Khanh Suu were still nominally in power. In a broadcast proclamation, the junta of young generals declared confidence in and support for both men.

U.S. officials said the latest assertion of over-all authority by the military badly damaged the civilian government's position.

Brig. Gen. Nguyen Khanh Thi, commander of the 1st Army Corps, is the dominant member of the junta. He escaped to Cambodia in 1960 after failing in an attempt to overthrow the Ngo Dinh Diem government. Since Diem's death he has risen rapidly in the Vietnamese army.

3 Stay Aboard Disabled Ship In Stormy Seas

Vessel Picks Up 34 Survivors and Bodies of 4 Others

NEW YORK (AP) — A cracked and imperiled American freighter wallowed helplessly in the stormy Atlantic today, with the captain and two crewmen still aboard.

A Coast Guard cutter arrived on the scene about dawn and reported that winds had risen to gale force of 39 m.p.h. and high seas prevented boarding the stricken vessel.

The 7,600-ton freighter, the Smith Voyager, was listing to starboard at about 35 degrees.

Except for the master, Capt. Frederick W. Mohle, 59, and the other two men, the crew abandoned her Sunday. Another ship picked up 34 men, and the bodies of four others who died in the operation.

One man, of the crew of 42, was unaccounted for.

One Missing
The rescue ship, the German freighter Mathilde Bolten, steamed toward Puerto Rico, reporting that some of the survivors urgently needed medical care.

The 311-foot Coast Guard cutter Rockaway radioed that it had reached the stricken American vessel, cracked amidships and drifting without power about 780 miles east southeast of Bermuda.

The cutter radioed, "Standing by for improvement in the seas, with plans to put aboard boarding party if feasible."

High winds and waves of 15 to 20 feet blocked any direct contact with the crippled vessel.

However, signals determined that the three men still were aboard the ship.

There was no radio communications with them.

"If anything happens, if the ship starts to go down, we'll try to get them off with 'shot lines' or by floating down a raft from up windward," a Coast Guard spokesman said.

The 450-foot freighter, carrying 10,000 tons of grain, was bound from the Bahamas to Ceuta, Spanish Morocco, when slipping cargo burst her seams.

The break in No. 4 hold, just aft the midship deckhouse, reportedly was taking water, and causing the extreme list in the ship. Her decks were awash.

Her main steam joint also was broken, leaving her without power.

As to whether she would sink, a Coast Guard spokesman said, "It's hard to say. She's been afloat for 24 hours now."

The clemency will free 123 persons. Terms will be cut for the other 50.

De Gaulle's action is in addition to an amnesty, voted by Parliament last week. It freed about 350 persons.

Most of those affected were persons who tried to block Algerian independence or plotted to overthrow De Gaulle.

Cairo Says Orders Ignored

Airmen Killed as Plane Is Shot Down

CAIRO (AP) — The Egyptian government said today a U.S. oil company plane shot down near Alexandria Saturday ignored repeated orders to land.

The pilot apparently filed a flight plan an hour before taking off. The plane was on a flight from Amman, Jordan, to Benghazi, Libya, to buy drilling detergent for Mecom's operations in Jordan, a company spokesman said.

Ordered to Land
The Egyptian government said two Egyptian MIG fighters intercepted the plane as it started across the Sinai Desert south of Agaba, Jordan, and ordered it to land at Cairo Airport.

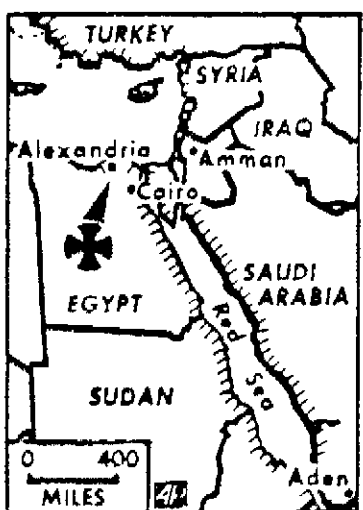

After starting to set down, official reports said, the plane resumed its northwesterly course. It was shot down over Lake Idku, on the shores of the Mediterranean, the government said.

Man Quizzed In Strangling Of His Wife

HUDSON, Wis. (AP)—A 35-year-old woman, mother of six, was found strangled in her home Sunday. Her estranged husband, located in a nearby city, was held for questioning but steadfastly maintained he knew nothing about his wife's death.

The victim, Mrs. Delores Morrison, lived with her children ranging in age from 15 to 5 years, in a rural area north of Hudson. Her estranged husband, located in a nearby city, was held for questioning but steadfastly maintained he knew nothing about his wife's death.

(Mrs. Hudson is a niece of Mrs. Elden Skiststad, Neenah, Wis. Mr. and Mrs. Herman Gustafson, Appleton, Marvyn Pruno, Menasha; Howard Pruno, Appleton, and Raymond Pruno, Neenah, who also has several children in the Fox Cities area.)

The prosecutor said Morrison related that on Saturday he visited his wife for the first time since their separation. Morrison said he arrived at the family home at about 8:30 p.m. and left between 10:30 and 11 p.m.

Heard Screaming

One of the children told authorities he heard what he thought was his mother screaming during the night.

Sunday morning, a 14-year-old son found his mother, clad in pajamas, lying on top of her bed. She was dead.

A physician who performed an autopsy said the condition of Mrs. Morrison's lungs indicated she had been strangled. There were abrasions on her body.

Sheriff Ray Hansen said Morrison was taken into custody at a hotel at New Richmond where he was registered as Richard Anderson. Morrison had a cut on his left wrist.

Woman Falls Through Ice; Copter Saves Her

NEW YORK (AP) — A woman out for a stroll Sunday fell through the ice of Brooklyn's Prospect Park lake but was rescued by a helicopter.

Frances Carbonaro, 33, approached the lake without realizing it. The lake as well as the shoreline was covered with snow. About 50 yards out, the ice gave way.

Twenty policemen, six firemen and several spectators ran to help Mrs. Carbonaro. Four policemen and two firemen were dunked in the icy water.

A police helicopter arrived. Mrs. Carbonaro was hauled to safety. She was treated for exposure, as were her would-be rescuers.

Flying Boxcars' Haylift

Wittenberg Airmen Helps Feed Storm-Stranded Montana Cattle

BY LYLE W. PRICE

GREAT FALLS, Mont. (AP) — Flying Boxcar 53-7878 lifted off the snow-blanketed runway of Malmstrom Air Force Base bound for storm-stranded, starving cattle in Montana's ranching heartland.

Inside its barrel-like belly the plane carried five tons of hay, making it look and smell like an airborne barn. And that's exactly what it's been the last three days.

9 Planes Take Part
This is "Operation Hay-lift," where Boxcar 53-7878 and eight other companion planes from California and Washington are dropping 65 tons of hay over an area where 361,000 head of cattle are snowbound in South-eastern Montana.

"This puts me right back where I started, hauling hay called C119s. Another came to gain," joked Lt. Col. Richard Earnes, 43, of Seattle, who flew 53-7878.

The pilot and one crew member, Airman 1C Terry Rymer, 21, of Wittenberg, Wis., said

"they had pitched hay when they were growing up."

"I realize the situation — that when the cows die the farmers lose a lot of money," said Rymer, who volunteered for the haylift during his leave time.

In Montana, distress among the cattle is critical. The state's 2.6 million head of cattle outnumber the 700,000 humans almost 4-to-1.

The Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service estimates that subzero weather and lack of forage cause the loss of 20,000 cattle and 26,000 sheep valued at $3.4 million.

The airlift by Flying Boxcar Maj. Donald J. Sammons, 44, of 53-7878 and its mates brought relief to an eight-county region. About 150 miles an hour. But I

Air Force bases in California contributed seven of the planes, at all, we don't go any lower than is safe."

Malmstrom AFB officials say Monday's planned four air drops should conclude "Opera-

the Delp Ranch 82 miles north-east of Miles City, for its objective.

Four crewmen shoved 100-pound bales of hay out two rear hatches as the plane made 20 sweeps over the ranch to discharge its load. Turbulence, wind, swirling snow and straw combined to harass the park-clad, airborne "farmhands."

Beneath, some of rancher Delp's 600 head of cattle scampered after the bales, which broke upon impact with the snow.

Take No Risks

LIMA, Peru (AP) — An ex- plosion in a U.S.-operated coal mine in central Peru Sunday killed 57 miners and injured two others.

It is operated by the U.S.- owned Cerro de Pasco Corp. While rescuers dug for bodies, officials of the government and the young the mining company tried to determine the cause of the acci- dent.

Authorities blamed the wreck on the fog and lack of attention on the part of the engineer of the freight train. A member of acting chairman and deputy the freight train crew said the chairman of the preparatory engineer apparently had been committee of the Tibet auton- dozing and did not see the omous region.

128 The engineer, identified as Miguel Sanchez Cruz, fled from the scene.
The passenger train had left Tenosique, in Tabasco, and was on its way to Coatzacoalcos in Veracruz State. It had halted for a 10-minute routine stop when the freight train hit it.
Although embassy sources said they viewed the situation with the utmost gravity, both governments appeared to be trying to prevent the incident from increasing the strain in U.S.-Egyptian relations result- ing from the sacking a month ago of the John F. Kennedy Memorial Library in Cairo by a mob of African students.

David Fritztland, U.S. consul general at Alexandria, visited the crash site Sunday. Eyewit- nesses reported some of the wreckage appeared to be punc- tured by bullet holes.

W. Angie Smith, the Mecom company's foreign representa- tive, left Houston for Cairo Sun- day. Mecom, a multimillionaire Houston oil man, was reported to be "in a highly nervous and upset state" in Houston.

"Mr. Mecom is just too upset to make any statement just yet because he doesn't know for sure what has actually hap- pened there," a company spokesman said.

Mecom earlier this year signed a 40-year contract giving him oil wildcatting rights in all of Jordan. He is a close friend of King Hussein, and the young monarch visited him in Houston after they signed the contract.

Buddhists Surprised
About 70 staff officers who had been assigned to the chief of state's office were shipped off under guard to the mountains north of Saigon. All had been on the staff of the former chief of state, Lt. Gen. Duong Van Minh, and had been left at the disposal of his successor.

The military's rapid move caught leaders of the Buddhists' antigovernment campaign by surprise. Their weekend of hunger striking and demon- strating was cut short and Buddhist followers were told "for the time being just pray and go home."

Pressure rom the Buddhists appeared to have been lifted, at least temporarily. Several of the politicians under arrest had been targets of the Buddhists, but several persons who had been associated with Buddhist extremists also were arrested.

The generals promised "im- partiality vis-a-vis every reli- gious and political difference," and said they were "ready to act as a mediator between all differences in order to achieve national unity, annihilate the Communists and safeguard the nation."

Many Misfortunes

Crippled Man Turns Bad Luck to Blessings

BY DOUGLAS BAILEY

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Roger W. Irving says he has turned his misfortunes into blessings. There have been many misfortunes.

He lost his right arm at 17. He had to drop out of college when his family suffered financial reverses. His two sons died at birth. Cancer cost him his vocal cords at 55. He lost the sight of his right eye at 68.

But Irving, named "Handi- capped American of the Year" Sunday by the President's Com- mittee on Employment of the Handicapped, said: "I never had any idea of giving up. Ev- ery misfortune I've had, I've made a blessing of it."

Teaches Speech
Now he teaches people who have lost their vocal cords how to speak, working with the U.S. Veterans Administration Cen- ter, the University of Miami Medical School and the Florida Division of Vocational Rehabili- tation.

"They make their first sound on the average of one month after surgery," Irving said. "Then you ought to see them." "You understand, because of the magic we invest in words, speech makes us feel powerful," Irving said. "Suddenly deprived of this speech, the patient usu- ally experiences apathy, isolation, becomes despondent, feels self- pity. But then they think, 'Well, my goodness, if you can do it, I can do it.'"

Vocal Cords
After vocal cords have been removed, an artificial "voice box" can be inserted surgically in the e sophagus. Speech can be achieved by controlled breath- ing, which forces air through the device.

The technique is difficult to master. Irving has taught more than 100 persons.

Irving, a big, balding man of 72 who says "I'm strong as an ox," grew up in Birmingham, Ala. Although his right arm was crushed when a seven-ton print- ing press fell on it while he was working as an electrician, Ir- ving won a city tennis tourna- ment the next year.

Irving supplemented his salesman's income by singing until he lost his vocal cords to cancer. After mastering esopha- geal speech, he did research, wrote articles and lectured to promote the technique.

How Lovely Are Thy Branches

Dellwood School kindergartners had a "real" Christmas tree this year. It's one they went out and got for themselves—with more than a little adult help. In the upper left, eager fingers point to the tree selected after a long search through the tree plot owned by I. C. Hohnstein, route 3, Clintonville. Parents of two of the pupils, Everett Pierre and Lawrence McKay chopped down the sturdy balsam. Toting it from the field was no problem. The youngsters scrambled for an opportunity to tug at a bough or even a twig of the prize. Paper rings had been fashioned beforehand as a class project to help decorate the tree once it was placed in the classroom. Their work finished, the youngsters sat around the tree and listened in awe, and with a little understanding, as their teacher, Mrs. Cliff Rofoth read "The Shiniest Star." (Laib Photos)

Seymour Pastor's Project

NEW LONDON — A project to preserve the water table and fish and game facilities in eastern Waupaca County, a 20-year dream of a Seymour pastor, has gotten started.

The dream, that of the Rev. W. E. Lange of Emmanuel Lutheran Church, has become a family venture with the formation of Wilderness Springs Inc. Last week it was approved by the Public Service commission. The project will cover 500 acres of Lebanon and Mukwa swamps, and will cost $19,000. It is to be tied to similar efforts by the Wisconsin Conservation Department and allied agencies.

Comprising the corporation are Pastor Lange, his wife, Helen, daughters, Dianne and Elaine, and son, Harold.

Natural Springs
Natural springs also abound through the region which is bordered on the south by State 54 between New London and Northport.

It is within a quarter of a mile from the Wolf River and a half mile of state-owned recreation-planned area elsewhere in Town of Mukwa. The state owns 1,600 acres of the Northport swamp.

Especially the project, when completed, will establish a water level of one and a half feet aided by Cedar Creek, the springs and annual overflow of the Wolf River. Excess water will be caught by a dam being constructed by the Waupaca County Highway Department. C. H. Peters is general contractor for the ditching. The dam will be at the south end of the tract.

Waupaca County Highway Department will drive steel-sheet piles into the land and construct the 11,000-foot earthen dam. It will stand six feet above the marsh and provide an eight-foot water level.

Participation Studied

Chilton C of C Directors Postpone Decision on Miss Wisconsin Entry

CHILTON — A Chamber of Commerce decision on joining the Miss Wisconsin Pageant was tabled until after Jan. 1 when the new directors and officers take office.

Donald Peltier, Manitowish district supervisor for the pageant, Thursday night outlined the program to the chamber board of directors. The number of participants has been increased from 28 to 35 for this year, he told the directors.

To take part in the pageant, local organizations need to sign a franchise by the local organization. Expenses involved would involve the local contest and sponsoring the trip and wardrobe of the city's representative, he explained.

The present board decided to table it, but encouraged the new board to give it serious consideration.

Directors Retire
Four directors will retire from the board this year. They are Hugo Herzog, Edward Lisaka, Robert Mand and Howard Schuch.

Eight men have been nominated, four of which will be elected via mail voting now being conducted. Nominated are Mike Bolz, Howard Gruett, Clyde E. McNeely, Donald Parson, Andrew Pendl, Roger Good, Russell Gilbertson and Richard Hackbarth.

Successful candidates will be announced at the annual meeting Jan. 14. Members of the nominating committee were Henry Koch, George Winkler and G. G. Bloomer.

Re-dividing the points where there were two men on a play gave an unofficial score of Taylor 92½, Whitehead 80, Vogel 27½, and Verich 20.

In spite of a week's lay-off during end-of-term examinations, the quartet's reflexes were as sharp as in their debut when they defeated Virginia Military Institute, and they improved their first week's score by 100 points. There were no brilliant bits of strategy such as Captain Vogel's running out the clock the week before. # New London to Update School Electric System

Washington High School to Begin First of 4 Phases With Switchboard Modernization

NEW LONDON—Work will begin Tuesday on phase I of modernizing the electrical system in the Washington High School building, said H. James Ramsdell, superintendent. Phase I of a four-part plan calls for work on a new master switch board, electric vault alterations and installation of primary underground service. Boehm Electric Inc., Neenah, was awarded the $16,400 contract for the project. Need for renovating the electrical circuits was discovered when the city utility requested check of the electrical distribution system showed overloading of some circuits, Lester Werner, business manager said. Werner said the building was not constructed with enough electrical circuits for modern use. Remodeling of the electrical system is expected to make it adequate for future needs of the school. Plans and specifications for the electrical system were prepared by Henry Miles Jr., a New London architect. Ramsdell said the work is to be completed Jan. 3 one day before school resumes in the district. If the work is not completed, the company will have to furnish another source of power so the school can operate.

foot roadway on the top. The overflow will be 23 feet wide.

Earth from the 30-by-six-foot ditch will be used to form, the dike. The area, when completed, can be drained at times prescribed by the conservation department. Technical advisors will be John Nimlos and Albert Holly of Waupaca, veteran Waupaca County soil conservationists. Drainage intended to induce ducks and geese to nest in the area and the growth of aquatic weeds which provide food for muskrats.

Interest in the project has been shown by state conservation officials including Oscar Steinke, head of the state's recreation land acquisition program, and Jerry Reickoff, area game manager.

Pastor Lange said some of the work has already been accomplished by the beavers which have built six dams in the region.

The pastor has long been associated with conservation, particularly with the Wolf River Basin Regional Planning Commission. He operates a 40-acre trout pound facility which is part of the 500-acre tract.

Muskrat, Beaver

During the past 20 years, five miles of level ditching has been done. It accounts for the increasing population of fur-bearing animals such as muskrat and beavers.

This year, another 3,000 trees of assorted species will be planted under the direction of forester Lloyd La Cosse of Waupaca. Previously, 13,000 trees were planted and timber stand improvement work was conducted by former Forester Dale Tubbs now living in Alaska.

The trout venture was initiated about five years ago. The area has always been a good pantry for animals after rain-falls, but the water drained off in the past, said Pastor Lange. The new program will attempt to maintain a permanent level for this area and the entire 800 acres concerned.

Flowage Rights

Four area farmers have granted flowage rights to Pastor Lange including Norman Maass of Seymour. Combined with his acreage, the program will affect more than 300 additional acres. The state requires flowage permission for at least 65 acres. Conservation authorities have indicated it could be a fine northern pike spawning area. Later, wild rice will be planted to attract ducks. The natural habitat of willows has been described as conducive, said Pastor Lange. The swamp starts in the Manawa-Symco area about five to seven miles away. For years it was owned by farmers who gained little benefit from it other than in drought years when they were able to cut the grass for cattle. The area was believed to have been settled in the 1850s.

First Segment

Pastor Lange purchased his first segment of land in 1943 from Henry Rake.

"I have always felt that this was one of God's big sponges, sopping up the water. It always had moisture percolating into the agriculture areas. It is high time," said Pastor Lange, "that we evaluate this resource. The average person requires 17 gallons a day for his living.

"It is not sufficient to dump this overflow into the Mississippi River and the Gulf of Mexico. Even in the Alaska area they are considering how to retain the water table for the Great Lakes. We must be good stewards and be concerned over retaining the water table for industrial growth," the pastor said.

The Lutheran cleric said he hoped to add a pheasant hunting reserve in the future to coincide with his trout fishing ponds. It will give the "general taxpayer a place to relax and be re-created," he said.

"Today is a big letter day in my hopes and ambitions. For over 20 years we have watched the water level drop with the river. Established ditches will need clearing because over the past 10 years muskrats have dug in and reduced potential flow area to only a few inches. Camping and hiking areas may be added later."

Thieves Take Furs, Suits From Prange's

Thieves apparently are doing some expensive Christmas shopping at the Appleton H. C. Prange Co. store.

Assistant Store Manager Robert Masse told police Friday night four mink stoles, valued at about $1,600 were missing from the fur department.

A short time later, Masse called police again to report 17 suits had been taken from the men's department.

The store official said the value of the missing suits had not yet been determined.

He and police agreed the thefts appeared to be the work of professionals, possibly the same ones who walked out of the store with 20 men's suits during the summer.

Investigation is continuing, police said.

Masse said he did not know when the merchandise was taken.

The test, for students planning to enter college, was taken by Sharon Conradt, Michael Feavel, Wesley Halle, Carol Hoesch, Sue Ann Leeman, Barbara Lohrenz and Suzanne Van Patten.

The test gives two scores. It compares the student to other 12th grade students and to college-bound students.

ing Robert Burns' Selkirk grade: 10 each for questions on exogamy, Moby Dick, Coleridge and a Latin translation, and five apiece for identifying clavicle and hallux.

Vogel scored 10 each on King John and Thales, plus five on mandible: Verich identified a group of rivers as boundaries, and answered a historical question on Sweden.

Two-man plays were made by Taylor-Whitehead on Plato's ideal state (five points) and T. S. Elliot's "Journey of the Magi" (20 points) Taylor-Verich identified the music of the "Nutcracker Suite" for 10 and Whitehead-Vogel won five points on tibia.

Team Action

General team action won 10 each on Thucydides (although Taylor's voice seemed loudest) and F. J. Turner (where Whitehead appeared to lead the chorus) and Whittier's "Snow-bound." Five points apiece were earned (in unison) by identifying mosaic, tapestry and stained glass.

The half-time score was Lawrence 130, Southwestern 25; and at the three-quarter mark Lawrence 155, Southwestern 35. Heavily weighted questions in the final minutes of play ran the score up quickly to the final 275 to 85.

Vogel is learning from his television experience that a leader's lot is not a happy one. Last week, he and teammate Whitehead had a dispute over minnow and mouse. Vogel chose his own answer, and lost. This week Vogel and Taylor got into a hassle over Emerson and Whittier. Probably mindful of last week's experience, he deferred to Taylor's answer. This time Vogel's idea had been right.

BRILLION—The resignation of Richard Hogstad as Guidance Director at Brillion High School effective Jan. 25 was accepted by the school board here this week.

Harry Drier, physical education instructor and athletic coach, was named to replace Hogstad.

Hogstad, who came to Brillion in 1958 as Industrial Arts instructor, had been offered a similar guidance position on the staff of the Eau Claire Technical Institute. # Anti-Pollution Measures for State Proposed

Health Department Seeking Expanded Spending Authority

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
MADISON — Two new anti-pollution programs have been proposed by the state department of health in its request for broadly expanded spending authority during the next two years.

The new biennial budget proposes that the agency launch a campaign for the clean-up of polluted beaches along Lake Michigan and especially in the populated centers there, and a new division on air pollution that would provide leadership and establish standards for control ordinances to be enacted by local governments.

The department for many years has been heavily engaged in work to prevent and to halt surface water pollution, through its collaboration with the State Committee on Water Pollution. It is also involved in inspections of underground water supplies for health protection.

O. J. Muegge, chief sanitary engineer of the agency, explained that it had been asked some months ago to survey Lake Michigan beach pollution by Gov. Reynolds, and that it has filed a report on its findings with the state department of resource development.

Hearing
But a clean-up effort will require additional expenditures, many areas where there are yet no local agencies working on air pollution problems.

The board has already established a new air pollution division, under a state law which has designated it as the sole agency responsible for

Ashes of French Hero Moved to Paris Pantheon

PARIS (AP) — The ashes of resistance hero Jean Moulin were entombed in the Pantheon Saturday in ceremonies watched by President Charles de Gaulle and thousands of moist-eyed Parisians.

Moulin died 21 years ago at the hands of German torturers. "Young people" said Cultural Minister Andre Malraux, as a freezing wind whipped the flag draped over the coffin. "hold out your hands to his poor deformed face on that last day, to his lips which did not open. That day, it was the face of France."

De Gaulle bowed to Moulin's coffin, a simple box stamped by his killers with the number 3857 before it was moved from the steps of the Left Bank monument to a simple scaffold under the dome. There it joined some of the giants of French history — Victor Hugo, Voltaire, Rousseau.

Johnson Has No Crises to Face Presently

Looks Like a Good Christmas Season For the President

BY JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson couldn't have a much better Christmas. He has everything going for him.

There's no crisis in sight. He has four years as president ahead. The country is prosperous. His own Democrats, in control of Congress, outnumber the Republicans tremendously.

Worse than that for his opposition, the decimated Republicans are even divided on where they go from here.

The Russians, having scuttled Nikita Khrushchev, are trying to get accustomed to being without him, but the Red Chinese are just as mad at them as they were at Khrushchev.

Few Promises
Johnson made so few promises in the election campaign he is free to go in almost any direction now and by soft-pedaling what he has in mind he has saved himself from criticism before he gets started.

Although the United States is the strongest military power on earth, the NATO allies are disagreeing among themselves but they have been doing that quite a while and Johnson can not be blamed for it.

In fact, if they start getting along soon, he will probably get much of the credit since instead of barging into the differences, he presents himself as the spreader of oil on troubled waters.

Even the civil rights turmoil has subsided a bit. And, thanks to the Supreme Court's approval of the ban on discrimination in places like hotels and restaurants, one big cause of trouble has had much of the sting taken out.

Budget Figures
Johnson would like to keep the budget for next year below $100 billion, and he will be working at it on his Texas ranch this week, getting ready to present his figures to Congress in January.

But even here if he cannot reach the desired figure, a storm is unlikely because he has already done such a good job of creating an image of himself as a penny-pincher. True, he does not seem to have figured out yet how to handle the press. He has been later escaped to England and trying it every which way in big news conferences announced ahead of time, in peripatetic conferences with a handful of reporters on the White House

GRIN AND BEAR IT

Official Says 95 Acres Too Much for City Park

The manager of the Outa-Appleton purchasing a 95-acre game County Agricultural Contract northeast of the city for a servation and Stabilization of park face says he does not favor Joseph D. Rickett, 936 W. Marquette St., makes his position known in a letter written to the plan commission. He advocated other sites for park purposes.

Nevertheless, he has been getting along all right, even with such mixed up arrangements, Rickett is expressing his personal opinion on the park purchase matter, or that of the agency which he represents.

The city is considering an offer to purchase 95 acres west of Ballard Road and north of Northland Avenue in the Town of Grand Chute for a community park.

Other Sites
"It is my opinion that 95 acres is certainly more land than the city needs for a park," Rickett wrote. "Secondly, it is not naturally suitable for a park site because of the lack of trees."

Rickett suggested the city should consider buying 10 acres of wooded area west of the property in question from Joseph Doerfler, or another 12-acre site owned by Bert Weyenmayr not last much beyond the big, located south of U. S. 41 first of the year. But, until then, Johnson can enjoy his Christmas tree, saying thanks to Santa Claus for a happy holiday.

Live Within Your Income

Second Mortgage Solution Can Become Financial Trap

BY MARY FEELEY
Consultant in Money Management

If you're at a low ebb right now, wondering who's going to help you carry your heavy financial burden, you may be a sitting duck for some sharp operators. These unethical individuals or firms are in business the way these gyp artists set it up.

In a recent Mary Feeley column the Post-Crescent incorrectly printed the number of a government pamphlet explaining the 1964 income tax law. The correct number is 5536. The booklet may be received through the Treasury Department, Washington, D. C.

for the sole purpose of making a profit out of your financial distress. They suggest to you that a second mortgage on your property is the answer to all your problems. Maybe a second mortgage would prove to be a good idea at this point, but not

The gist of the matter is this: unethical brokers offering home owners an "opportunity" to reduce their heavy indebtedness say you can take out a loan from them, and pay off all the bills that are nagging you. In return, you pay only a small monthly amount, much smaller than you are paying now on your collective obligations. As government pamphlet explaining security, the over-burdened the 1964 income tax law. Cor-home owner is required to give rect number is 5536. The book- a second mortgage on his let may be received through the dwelling. The terms sound just Treasury Department, Washing- nifty until he multiplies the amount of his monthly payment by the number of months he must pay over a period of three to five years. It's then that he discovers he has obligated himself for a new debt up to twice as much or more than the debts he has consolidated!

Check Before Signing
The Better Business Bureau recognizes the fact that there are substantial, reliable firms and individuals in the business of making second mortgage loans. Their plea is simply to make sure you know what you're doing before you step off the deep end. Remember, you can check with the Bureau before you sign any contract, to learn what facts may be on record concerning a particular money-finder and his methods of operation.

Keep in mind that even the dishonest broker will quote the legal interest rate in that state. Often, all the customer is told before signing a contract is what the interest will be. What the victim isn't told is that he will be stuck for various service fees he didn't know were involved. These fees will become part of the total loan, which he has contracted, unwittingly, to pay off. For instance: the broker's placement or money finder's fee may range from $500 on a $1,000 mortgage to more than $2,000 on a $5,000 loan! The Bureau cites the case of a woman in Ohio who borrowed $3,000. She found she had to pay back $5,850 over a five-year period, at $97.50 a month. In addition to the 6 per cent interest charged, total settlement costs were as follows:

Searches, $35; credit reports, $20; investigation costs, $30; preparation of instruments, $50; placement fee, $1,375; brokerage fee, $450; recordings, $20; appraisal, $45; closing costs, $50. Total, $2,075.

Some of the advertising done by these unethical brokers is very persuasive. They emphasize that the payments involved

Despite Earthquake

Bright Christmas Seen in Anchorage

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — Less than nine months ago this booming northland city was stricken by one of the mightiest earthquakes ever recorded. With its first post-quake Christmas approaching, the city's merchants find the current business picture as bright as the twinkle in Santa's eyes. The consensus is that business this Christmas season promises to be very, very good, despite the big shake of March 27, and perhaps the best ever. Employment is up and the Salvation Army's Christmas kettles are ringing out a tune of quarters and dimes far louder than in past years. Vance Phillips, coproprietor of two large locally owned de-

Social Security Amendment Hikes Benefits to Disabled

Social security amendments, an application for disability signed into law by President Johnson will bring new or higher benefits to more than 100,000 totally disabled workers and dependents. Robert M. Ball, commissioner of social security, Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, reported. The newly signed legislation removes a restriction on the retroactivity of applications for disability insurance benefits which had caused some disabled workers and their dependents to receive reduced benefits or to lose their disability insurance rights entirely. Under the previous law, day tremor is under construction. Jack Ferguson, Northern Commercial Co. manager for Anchorage, said business is good and he expects it to continue at a high level through the Christmas season. Northern Commercial's big downtown store also was destroyed March 27. The firm is operating out of temporary quarters, with no room for its appliance, furniture and hardware departments. No Complaints "If we just had more room," Ferguson said, "we'd have no complaints at all." Lt. Col. Daniel G. Rody, Salvation Army commander in Anchorage, said the volunteer agency has more families to help this year because of the quake, but people appear to be more generous with contributions. Most of the needy families, Rody said, are from the small native villages so hard hit by seismic sea waves March 27. "The cities and towns Valdez, Seward, Kodiak and Anchorage — do not appear to have increased needs this year, because just about everyone is working," Rody said.

later than usual and there are just more payrolls." Yvonne Krotke, manager of the State Employment Service Office in Anchorage, said quake reconstruction work has resulted in lower unemployment and a higher than normal level of winter employment. "Several of the big jobs are continuing through the winter," Mrs. Krotke said, "and a lot of the men who are usually laid off at this time, because of severe winter weather, are still employed." School Work Among projects continuing through winter's sub-zero temperatures are the reconstruction of two schools and the J. C. Penney Co. store, as well as new construction on a hotel and office building. Robert Grier, Penney's manager, said he finds business conditions definitely better than a year ago. "Sales have shown an increase and it seems there is just more money in circulation this year," he said. # Washington Is Getting Ready For Inaugural

40,000 May be Seated Along Path Of Long Parade

BY MARTHA COLE
WASHINGTON (AP) — The east front of the U.S. Capitol faces a mass of wooden platforms; special new light poles are rising in front of the White House; lumber is piled across the street.

It's Washington getting ready for its quadrennial spectacle, the inauguration of a new president next Jan. 20.

At the Capitol, the stand for the ceremony itself on the east steps, is nearing completion. Its design is the same as the stand for John F. Kennedy's inauguration on that cold day in 1961. Seats are being built for 18,430 and some 60,000 more are expected to come if the weather is good.

Along the inaugural parade route, bleachers for about 40,000 will be built, and 500,000 more are expected to stand. Construction already has begun on the press stand and seats for about 16,000 in Lafayette Square, across the street from the White House.

The contract has been let for the pavilion in front of the White House from which President Johnson and Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey and their families will review the parade after the inaugural ceremony.

Some changes have been made or are contemplated for this inauguration — based on experiences of the past.

The ceremony at the Capitol used to begin at high noon with various preliminaries delaying the actual presidential oath-taking. The committee is thinking about beginning them this time before noon so that the actual swearing in of Johnson will come at high noon as provided in the Constitution.

Starting Time
This also would step up the starting time of the inaugural parade down the thoroughfare of presidents — Pennsylvania Avenue — to the White House, about 2½ miles.

Four years ago the parade didn't end until an hour after the sun set at 5:20 p.m. The sun sets at 5:15 next Jan. 20 and the committee aims at winding up the parade before then.

Already the inaugural committee has made two parade decisions:

—Only the military units will march the full route from the Capitol, with the civilian units joining them at the foot of Capitol Hill.

—Each state is entitled to one governor's car, one float, one band and one marching unit in the parade. The Democratic state chairman in each state is responsible for the selections.

Wary Eye
The committee has a wary eye on various long-range forecasts and almanacs that predict snow around Jan. 20, 1965. There is a vivid remembrance of the blizzard that hit Washington on inauguration eve in 1961.

Engineering troops at nearby Ft. Belvoir, Va., already are prepared to move in and help metropolitan workers clear the streets if a snowstorm comes.

Much already has been done — even the trees along the parade route have been bird-proofed for the sake of spectators beneath them.

Much still has to be done and decided — such as whether to hold one or several inaugural balls, and if so, where.

And one of the unresolved problems is who is to lead the parade. Tradition says it's the governor and a band from the home state of the new president. Both the University of Texas band and the one from San Marcos State College in Texas, Johnson's alma mater, are claiming that right for the Texan who is president.

off from Amman. Egyptian authorities normally take a week to approve a flight plan and there appeared little doubt that officials here were not promptly informed of the flight.

Thorough Probe Asked

The U.S. Embassy said it had requested a thorough analysis and review of the incident. It said the U.S. and Egyptian governments were cooperating in the investigation.

Explosion in Chile

LIMA, Peru (AP) — An explosion in a U.S.-operated coal mine in central Peru Sunday killed 57 miners and injured two others.

Reports from the mine, near Cerro de Pasco 125 miles north-east of Lima, said gas and coal dust exploded. The mine's output is used to make coke for copper, gold and silver mining operations at Cerro de Pasco.

It is operated by the U.S.-owned Cerro de Pasco Corp. While rescuers dug for bodies, officials of the government and the mining company tried to determine the cause of the accident.

Peru's President Fernando Belaunde Terry sent messages of sympathy to families of the victims.

41 Killed in Train Smashup

Authorities blamed the wreck on the fog and lack of attention on the part of the engineer of the freight train. A member of the freight train crew said the chairman of the preparatory engineer apparently had been dozing and did not see the stopped train until too late. The engineer, identified as Miguel Sanchez Cruz, fled from the scene.

The passenger train had left Tenosique, in Tabasco, and was on its way to Coatzacoalcas in Veracruz State. It had halted for a 10-minute routine stop when the freight train hit it.

Although embassy sources said they viewed the situation with the utmost gravity, both governments appeared to be trying to prevent the incident from increasing the strain in U.S.-Egyptian relations resulting from the sacking a month ago of the John F. Kennedy Memorial Library in Cairo by a mob of African students.

David Fritztland, U.S. consul general at Alexandria, visited the crash site Sunday. Eyewitnesses reported some of the wreckage appeared to be punctured by bullet holes.

W. Angie Smith, the Mecom company's foreign representative, left Houston for Cairo Sunday. Mecom, a multimillionaire Houston oil man, was reported to be "in a highly nervous and upset state" in Houston.

"Mr. Mecom is just too upset to make any statement just yet because he doesn't know for sure what has actually happened there," a company spokesman said.

Mecom earlier this year signed a 40-year contract giving him oil wildcatting rights in all of Jordan. He is a close friend of King Hussein, and the young monarch visited him in Houston after they signed the contract.

Major Job Lost

By Panchen Lama

HONG KONG (AP) — The Panchen Lama, Peking's picked ruler of Tibet, has been accused of plotting to overthrow Communist Chinese rule and has been purged of another important post in the Himalayan kingdom.

Western experts said reports from Communist China say the Panchen Lama and his chief lieutenant, Chan-tung, have been purged from the posts of acting chairman and deputy chairman of the preparatory committee of the Tibet autonomous region.

Purge Casts Doubt On Viet Nam's Future

Gen. Nguyen Van Thieu, 4th Corps commander.

Buddhists Surprised
About 70 staff officers who had been assigned to the chief of state's office were shipped off under guard to the mountains north of Saigon. All had been on the staff of the former chief of state, Lt. Gen. Duong Van Minh, and had been left at the disposal of his successor.

The military's rapid move caught leaders of the Buddhists' antigovernment campaign by surprise. Their weekend of hunger striking and demonstrating was cut short and Buddhist followers were told "for the time being just pray and go home."

Pressure from the Buddhists appeared to have been lifted, at least temporarily. Several of the politicians under arrest had been targets of the Buddhists, but several persons who had been associated with Buddhist extremists also were arrested.

The generals promised "impartiality vis-a-vis every religious and political difference," and said they were "ready to act as a mediator between all differences in order to achieve national unity, annihilate the Communists and safeguard the nation."

Lt. Gen. Nguyen Khanh, chief of the armed forces and former premier, nominally gave the order to dissolve the council and carry out the arrests. But reports said he was under close observance by the young generals and little more than a figurehead.

and the premier accompanied the general to general staff headquarters for talks with the Young Turks.

Gen. Thi called on the chief of state for an hour. The new military council met most of the day at general staff headquarters.

The young generals' purge is believed to have been touched off by the High National Council's failure to accede to their demand for the retirement of all officials with 25 or more years of service. This would include Gen. Minh.

The junta's proclamation accused the High National Council of "being abused by counter-revolutionary elements who are acting against the spirit of national unity to the detriment of the highest interests of the nation in violation of the provision of constitution, thus hampering the reorganization of the armed forces and weakening the anti-Communist potential."

ple, two of whom were killed instantly. The third victim died several hours later. The impact ripped the car apart, tossed the bodies 30 to 90 feet from the collision point and the engine transmission 75 feet. Ice skates were found nearby.

Ludwig F. Andraschko, 37, of Milwaukee was killed in a freak accident Sunday. Police said he was crushed under his own car on a South Side street after working under the hood to get the engine started.

Falls Under Wheels

When Andraschko raised the hood of the car, the vehicle, apparently in gear started rolling slowly toward him. Police said Andraschko slipped, fell between the wheels and his clothing hooked on part of the car's understructure. He was dragged some 50 feet and died of crushing chest injuries as the car hit a curb and lightpost.

Miss Kathlee Wist, 23, of Glendale, was killed Saturday when the car in which she was riding skidded on a slippery roadway and was struck broadside by another car. The accident occurred in Glendale.

Many Misfortunes

Crippled Man Turns Bad Luck to Blessings

BY DOUGLAS BAILEY

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Roger W. Irving says he has turned his misfortunes into blessings. There have been many misfortunes.

He lost his right arm at 17. He had to drop out of college when his family suffered financial reverses. His two sons died at birth. Cancer cost him his vocal cords at 55. He lost the sight of his right eye at 68.

But Irving, named "Handicapped American of the Year" Sunday by the President's Committee on Employment of the Handicapped, said: "I never had any idea of giving up. Every misfortune I've had, I've made a blessing of it."

Teaches Speech

Now he teaches people who have lost their vocal cords how to speak, working with the U.S. Veterans Administration Center, the University of Miami Medical School and the Florida Division of Vocational Rehabilitation.

"They make their first sound on the average of one month after surgery," Irving said. "Then you ought to see them."

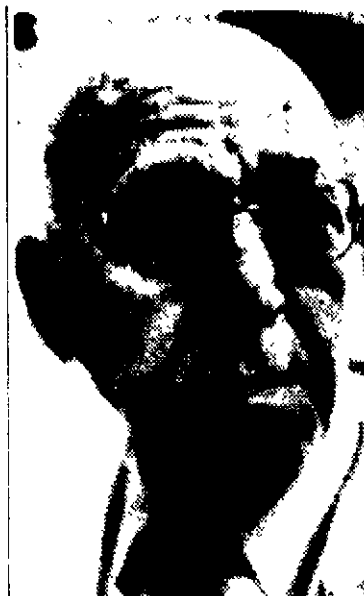

"You understand, because of the magic we invest in words, speech makes us feel powerful," Irving said. "Suddenly deprived of this speech, the patient usually experiences apathy, isolation, becomes despondent, feels self-pity. But then they think, 'Well, my goodness, if you can do it, I can do it.'"

Vocal Cords

After vocal cords have been removed, an artificial "voice box" can be inserted surgically in the esophagus. Speech can be achieved by controlled breathing, which forces air through the device.

The technique is difficult to master. Irving has taught more than 100 persons.

Irving, a big, balding man of 72 who says "I'm strong as an ox," grew up in Birmingham, Ala. Although his right arm was crushed when a seven-ton printing press fell on it while he was working as an electrician, Irving won a city tennis tournament the next year.

Irving supplemented his salesman's income by singing until he lost his vocal cords to cancer. After mastering esophageal speech, he did research, wrote articles and lectured to promote the technique.

A Christmas Prayer

Let us pray that strength and courage abundant be given to all who work for a world of reason and understanding ✽ that the good that lies in every man's heart may day by day be magnified ✽ that men will come to see more clearly not that which divides them, but that which unites them ✽ that each hour may bring us closer to a final victory, not of nation over nation, but of man over his own evils and weaknesses ✽ that the true spirit of this Christmas Season—its joy, its beauty, its hope, and above all its abiding faith—may live among us ✽ that the blessings of peace be ours—the peace to build and grow, to live in harmony and sympathy with others, and to plan for the future with confidence.
